HIGH COURT ACCEPTS 2 CHALLENGES TO BLACK'S SEAT; CHIEF JUSTICE TILTS THREE TIMES WITH LAWYER

Submarine Fires Torpedo at British Destroyer

WARSHIPS, PLANES SCOUR SEALANES FOR PIRATE CRAFT

Attacked Vessel Replies With Depth Charges in First Encounter Since Inauguration of Anti-Piracy Patrol Scheme.

MYSTERY BLAST FOLLOWS BOMBING

London, Paris Believed Ready To Open French Border If Italy Spurns Bid To Talk on Spain.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—British warships and airplanes searched the western Mediterranean tonight for an unidentified submarine which renewed attacks on neutral vessels by firing a torpedo at the British destroyer Basilisk.

The attack, first encounter between a submarine and a neutral vessel since inauguration of the international anti-piracy patrol plan, took place near Cape San Antonio, south of Valencia.

It came in the midst of delicate Anglo-French negotiations to persuade Italy to enter a conference on the Spanish civil war and just as Paris and London were congratulating themselves that their warship patrol had ended "piracy" in the Mediterranean.

Torpedo Misses.

The submarine's torpedo missed the Basilisk, which dropped depth charges in an attempt to sink the underwater attacker. It was not known whether the submarine was damaged.

(Spanish government news agency reports said the submarine attacked two destroyers, but the admiral report said only one was involved.)

The incident raised anew the whole question of attacks on Mediterranean shipping by submarines which some quarters have accused of being Italian.

British warships have been attacked before in Spanish civil war waters. The most recent incident was September 1, when a torpedo was fired at the destroyer Havock.

"Without impatience, but prepared for action" was the mood in which informed sources said Great Britain and France awaited Italy's reply to their joint invitation to discuss the ending of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war.

Willing to Meet Duce.

These sources emphasized the two nations were "not hidebound in regard to procedure," but were willing to meet Premier Mussolini's wishes in regard to how the negotiations should be carried on.

Unofficial quarters declared that if Duce refuses to collaborate after having had time to study the note, Great Britain and France will not delay in taking positive steps.

The most important of such steps were foreseen here as the opening of the Franco-Spanish border to arms shipments and the movement of volunteers, the formal ending of non-intervention by

Extensive Use of Paroles Commended by Underwood

Education of Public in Administration of Criminal Law Urged by Federal Jurist as Aid to Unfortunates; Commends Probation System Despite Criticism.

Commending extensive use of your laws are enforced and obeyed, to ascertain the condition of your jails and other penal institutions, and to inform yourself as to the treatment of criminals and the effect of this treatment on the public and on them and their dependents."

Intangible Matters.

The judge said that "these intangible matters" should be given earnest and thoughtful attention by all good citizens and especially grand jurors.

"We must prevent our penal institutions from becoming mere schools of crime and degradation and strive to make them institutions where the unfortunate offender may be humanely and decently treated," he emphasized.

Prisoners should be helped to regain their self-respect and hope for the future, he explained.

Citing a number of particular laws, Judge Underwood said that "the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the re-enactment of federal revenue laws represent the abandonment of a national policy of absolute prohibition and reliance upon regulation, both of which have fallen far short of effectiveness."

Informed Public.

He said that the evil must be combated not only by strict enforcement of laws, but also by "the creation of an informed public opinion which would determine to end it by educational processes, disclosing its inherent harm to the community."

ROOSEVELT HINTS AT EXTRA SESSION ON CROP CONTROL

President Renews Demands for Wage and Hour Bill and Measure Designed To Aid Agriculture of the Country.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt left here tonight at 10:07 o'clock, Atlanta time, for Chicago.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, with fresh courage born of his western trip, made new demands tonight for wage-hour and surplus crop control laws to replace "cornerstones" of his program "knocked out by the supreme court."

He indicated he might call a special session of congress to act on the farm bill.

He held up the court here and at Grand Forks, N. D., as having thwarted his program, speaking at a time when his appointee, Justice Hugo L. Black, was taking his seat on the high bench, after a bitter controversy over his former affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan.

He said he was more convinced than ever of the need for nearly uniform standard of wages, adding that he looked to all sections to support him in this.

Fair Standards Sought.

He said the "twin" wage-hour and child labor law was not intended to restore all the features of NRA, but to restore fair standards to the workers of the nation.

He made a new gesture of friendship to the Farmer-Laborites of this state.

He predicted labor and farm legislation would result in lower relief costs.

He forecast taxes would go no higher.

The President blazed a trail of important speeches across North Dakota and Minnesota during the day.

Grand Forks, in the morning, he held an estimated 35,000 assembled in the fairgrounds that a sur-

RACKETEERS DEFLY GRAND JURY PROBE, PLAN TO REOPEN

Andrews Accepts Challenge; They're Headed for Chain Gang, Prosecutor Says, of Report of Lottery Reorganizations

"We'll Bear Down," PROBERS PROMISE

Two Attorneys Complete Defense Against Contempt Citation To Be Heard This Morning.

Atlanta bug racketeers "are headed for the chain gang in their fight against the law," E. E. Andrews, special prosecutor, declared last night in accepting the challenge of grapevine reports that operators intend to defy the grand jury probe and resume operations.

The Andrews statement climaxed underworld reports that at least two large companies already are reorganizing their forces, that a third has passed out word it will resume next week and the other major companies issued a call to subordinates to be ready to "begin work immediately."

"We are going to drive the whole crowd into the chain gang where they can't write each other," Andrews asserted. "I hope they will resume operations. It will make our task much easier, because we are going to bear down."

Slated for Surprise.

"The whole group of local big shots is slated for the surprise of their lives. We are out to get them and we are going to do just that."

While bug forces, scattered by the "heat" of the past two weeks' grand jury investigation into bug activities and pay-offs to law enforcement officers, prepared according to reports to reopen for business, two attorneys—William R. Bentley and Guy Tyler—put the finishing touches on their defense of contempt proceedings instituted against them last week.

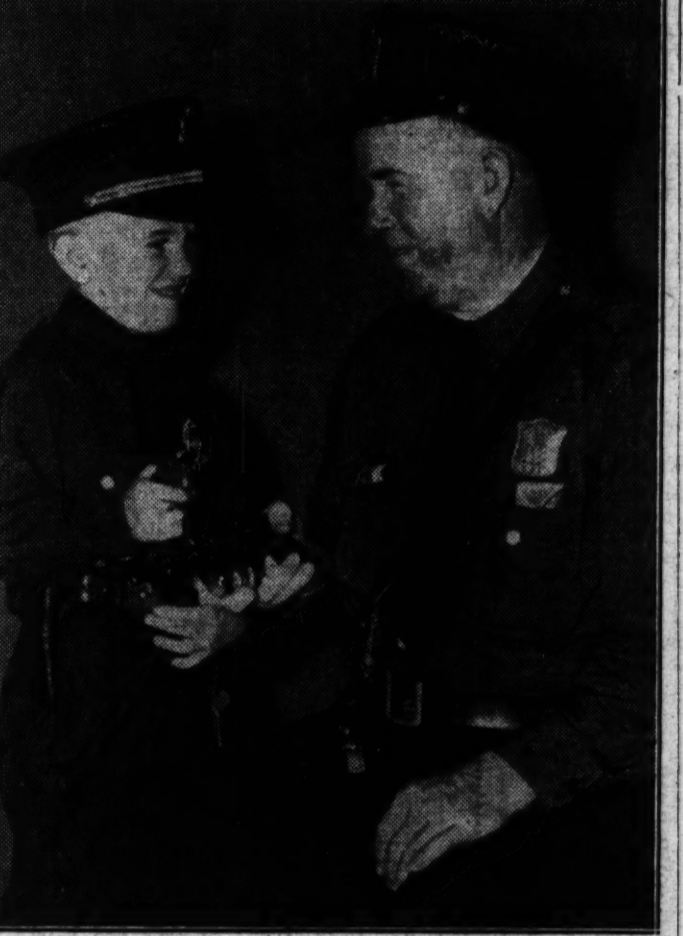

J. Mallory Hunt, who will represent the pair when they face Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court today, said he did not wish to disclose the entire line of defense last night, but indicated that it will be predicated on "confidential communication between attorney and his client."

Motion To Be Denied.

One Policeman to Another—In Happier Days

Atlanta's youngest policeman, eight-year-old Bernard Blackwell, was receiving instructions from Patrolman J. D. Stribling when the above picture was made. Last night Bernard visited his friend, Stribling, who is dangerously ill at the Georgia Baptist hospital following an operation. Officer Stribling and his young companion are well-known figures on the Atlanta police force.

Boy 'Policeman' Pays Visit To His Idol in Hospital

Officer Stribling Recognizes 8-Year-Old Pal; Offered Second Transfusion.

Eight-year-old Bernard Blackwell stood outside a hospital room last night and said:

"Gosh, he knew me!"

"He" was Patrolman J. D. Stribling, of the Atlanta police force, who lay seriously ill at the Georgia Baptist hospital following an operation. Last night's visit was the first allowed Bernard whose friendship for the popular officer has attracted wide notice.

Until last night the condition of Policeman Stribling was serious and a blood transfusion had been necessary last week. His nephew, L. D. Stribling, donated his blood. Visitors have been barred from his room at the hospital but last night Bernard called, laden with a bouquet of varied colored dahlias almost as large as himself.

Likes Red Flowers.

"Mr. Stribling likes flowers and especially red ones," he said. "My teacher, Miss Faven, at the Georgia Avenue school, heard about him being sick and brought me these flowers from her garden. I am glad there is a red one in the bunch."

Hospital attendants allowed the young boy to slip into the room to see Stribling "for just a minute," they said, with a promise that he would not talk. And so with the promise Bernard entered.

When Stribling saw his young

EX-SENATOR TAKES PLACE ON BENCH IN TENSE SESSION

Nine Black-Robed Judges March in; Hughes Reveals Black Has Already Taken Oath, Then Bar Candidates Are Called.

RECESS IS ORDERED UNTIL NEXT WEEK

Boston Attorney Silenced, Told To File Written Objection; Justices Sit Without Expression.

By JOHN R. BEAL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Justice Hugo L. Black assumed life membership on the supreme court today with a minimum of ceremony as Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes sternly rebuked a lawyer who came as close to interrupting the solemnity of opening day as is possible in the austere tribunal.

In a 23-minute session devoted mostly to admission of new members of the bar, the court placed under advisement two motions challenging Black's right to his seat, and then recessed until next Monday noon. The challenges were:

1. A petition by Albert Levitt, former U. S. district judge for the Virgin Islands and former assistant attorney general, asking the court to entertain an original suit seeking to void President Roosevelt's first appointment on the grounds that no vacancy existed for him to fill, and even if there were, Black, as a former Alabama senator, would not be eligible.

2. A request by Patrick Henry Kelly, Boston attorney, for "a hearing on the title of Mr. Justice Black to sit on this court."

Kelly interrupted procedure as attorneys were being sworn in and Hughes exclaimed sharply:

"You're out of order!"

The Boston attorney made three attempts before he finally got his motion accepted.

Atmosphere Tense.

The atmosphere was tense as noon approached. The controversy over Black's former membership in the Ku Klux Klan, which he openly avowed in an unprecedented radio speech Friday night, and announcement that hands would be distributed proclaiming the day one of "mourning for justice," attracted one of the largest crowds in history. Only 500 could be jammed into the courtroom itself and hundreds had to stand outside, waiting for a brief glimpse inside when the ceremony was over.

The hum of conversation was cut off at noon when Chief Justice Hughes Waggaman rapped his gavel to announce:

"The chief justice and the associate justices of the supreme court of the United States."

The curtains parted and the white-robed Hughes entered. Behind him and on both sides were the other justices, Black last of all. The focus of every eye, Black took his seat on "freshman" judge's bench, the corner for all "freshman" justices. That was the signal that he would not go through the formality of another oath. He swore the

JAPANESE BATTER LINES AT SHANGHAI

Nipponese Claim Minor Advances; Tokyo Bans Imports, Hitting Cotton

SHANGHAI, Oct. 5.—(Tuesday) (AP)—Japanese artillery hammered Chinese positions today in a sustained bombardment designed to crack the Chinese lines extending from the northern edge of Shanghai to the Yangtze river.

The Japanese claimed minor advances along the front where a heavy battle raged during the night. Chinese, however, asserted that they continued to hold their positions.

A Japanese army spokesman predicted that by October 10, the Chinese national holiday, "the Chinese will not have much to celebrate."

The Chinese front at Shanghai, he said, "is like an open fan, with Chinese withdrawing in the same way that a fan closes, thus shortening the front."

Skirmish at Station.

The North Station area of Shanghai was the scene of a sharp skirmish early today. Japanese sought to drive Chinese from Range road but were beaten back.

At Nanking, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and other members of the Chinese defense council, expressed concern over continued Japanese advances in northern provinces of Shantung, Shansi and Hopei.

The Chinese government spokesman said it was feared that lightly equipped provincial troops

GREEN CALLS AFL TO WAR ON LEWIS

Charges CIO Chieftain Is Using Labor To Pave Way to U. S. Presidency.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 4.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight the CIO was being used as the nucleus for a political organization designed to make John L. Lewis president of the United States.

"I appeal to the American people and the organized workers of America to choose between an unselfish, common sense political policy in labor and one dictated by unreasoning personal ambition, doomed from the outset to failure," Green said in a radio speech.

Green's speech tonight was his second blast of the day at Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization. He opened the AFL's 57th annual convention by pledging the federation to increasing war to destroy the CIO and to support democracy against the type of dictatorship he said Lewis represented.

For two years the American Federation of Labor has been patient towards the CIO, Green said. "First, we warned its leaders to desist. We advised them that their course would destroy the unity of the labor movement in this country."

Warnings Unheeded.

BOARD'S REPORT ON ROOF ADOPTED

Controversy Over Repair to City Auditorium Is Ended by Council Vote.

Controversy over repairs to the municipal Auditorium roof was apparently ended yesterday when city council voted to adopt the report of the special board of inquiry and to replace alleged defective steel joists in the roof.

Although Alderman Ed A. Gilman sought to postpone action, Councilman John A. White, chairman, and three other members of the buildings committee, recommended that the board's report be accepted as final and that the city and the WPA proceed in repairs as rapidly as possible. This was the action taken by council.

$10,000 Already Set Up.

The city has already set up $10,000 for its share, while the WPA has approved $23,000 for the project. Mayor Hartsfield in a special communication yesterday, asked that council follow the recommendation of the board.

"I do so with reluctance," said Councilman White. "However, I believe this is the only way to restore public confidence in the safety of the Auditorium."

The resolution adopted directed that the city architects, who contended replacement of the steel joists was unnecessary, and the WPA and the city "proceed harmoniously" with repairing the mu-

4 KILLED IN CRASH AT RAIL CROSSING

New Orleans Limited Hits Alabama's Auto on Detour in North Georgia.

NEW ENGLAND, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Four persons were killed late today when the southbound New Orleans Limited of the Southern railway struck an automobile at a grade crossing on a detour road near here.

The dead, all from Flat Oak, Ala., were identified at a Chattanooga undertaking establishment as:

Marvin Callahan, 27, driver of the car.

Mrs. Marvin Callahan, 25.

Walter Pennington, 38.

Mrs. Walter Pennington, 35, who died en route to a hospital in Chattanooga, about 20 miles north of here.

Fifth Person Hurt.

The fifth occupant of the automobile, John Adam Pennington, 60, was critically injured and was taken to a Chattanooga hospital.

Because of construction work between New England and Trenton, Ga., the Alabamians took the Creek road detour. The grade crossing is somewhat higher than the road, and A. W. Peck, proprietor of a store about 200 yards from the crossing, said the view was partially obstructed by a stack of lumber, but that he heard the train whistle.

Peck said the weather was damp

COUGHLIN BRANDS F.D.R.'S APPOINTING BLACK 'STUPIDITY'

Justice Should Wear White Hood on Bench, Aroused Priest Declares.

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, long silent on public affairs, today denounced President Roosevelt's appointment of Hugo Black to the supreme court as "stupidity."

Father Coughlin, home from a European tour to regain his health following a collapse several months ago, resumed his attacks on the New Deal, directing his sharpest shafts at the Black appointment.

"If congress can and will pass any resolution respecting Justice Black," Father Coughlin said, "it is my hope that the resolution will instruct him to wear a white hood as he occupies the supreme court bench so that the children of the next generation will appreciate to what depths a politician will stoop, and will appreciate some of the misery we have been saved had there been five other appointees of Justice Black's caliber."

"May Black be a monument to the New Deal attempt to destroy the independence of the supreme court, of Mr. Roosevelt's personal stupidity in appointing him and of the United States senate's tendency to rubber stamp practically all New Deal proposals."

Granting what he declared would be his "only interview of the year," Father Coughlin announced plans to resume his Sunday afternoon broadcasts, beginning October 31 over a national network, but intimated he would not again take an active part in political campaigns.

judicial oath August 19, before leaving for a European vacation. Hughes announced:

"Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, a former member of the senate of the United States, has been nominated by the President for the office of associate justice of the supreme court. He has been confirmed by the senate and has presented his commission. He has heretofore taken the oath in the form provided by law."

Without the slightest pause Hughes went on:

"Are there any applications for admission to the bar?" That was the cue for Clerk Charles Elmore Cropley. He read off some names and a group of lawyers gathered in front of the bench. Their sponsor assured the court of their qualifications and Hughes said:

"You may pass to the clerk's desk to take the oath."

At this point a small, thin, gray-haired man in a gray business suit stood up and said in a loud voice:

"Mr. Chief Justice, I want to in-

Grady's Blood Bank Gets Deposits Today

First deposits in Grady hospital's "blood bank" will be made tomorrow afternoon, officials of the unique institution announced yesterday.

With the "vault" for the bank installed, the bank is now ready to begin actual operation, Superintendent J. B. Franklin said.

O. T. Smith, Constitution printer who was the first volunteer depositor, and three members of the Elks Club, which volunteered as an organization to "finance" the "blood bank" whenever necessary, are to give the first blood. S. D. Gallagher, chairman of the Elks "blood committee," asserted yesterday.

Introduce myself, Patrick Henry Kelly, of Boston.

"Are you moving an admission to the bar?" Hughes broke in.

"No," said Kelly, "I wish to ask a question."

"You're out of order," Hughes said.

A page was at Kelly's side and the lawyer sat down.

The court continued his calling of new attorneys, among them a negro, J. Flipper Derricotte, of Washington.

All of the justices entered with stony expressions and as the drone of the admission routine continued they all seemed to be avoiding any facial expression. None glanced at Black, who stared at the applicants, Justice James C. McReynolds, with a jaunty blue bow tie showing above the top of his black robe, assumed his characteristic posture leaning back in his swivel chair, his eyes on the ceiling.

Justices Pierce Butler and Owen J. Roberts cupped their chins in their hands.

Finally the last applicant had taken his oath and Kelly arose again.

"I want to make a motion of personal privilege," he announced.

"Is it in writing?" Hughes asked.

Hughes broke in.

Kelly admitted it was not. He started to say something about "an extraordinary situation" which was not clearly heard above the courtroom murmur, but Hughes broke in sharply to say:

"Put it in writing."

Kelly subsided again.

Next came Levitt, a jolly looking little man in dark business suit, wearing black horn-rimmed glasses. His petition was in writing and Hughes told him to give it to the clerk.

Then Kelly made his third and successful appearance. He had written his request in long hand on a piece of paper. Hughes said evenly:

"You may present it to the clerk."

A moment later Hughes announced a week's recess and the justices filed out. Kelly, surrounded by reporters in front of the bench, said his arguments against seating Black, if granted a hearing, would include those of Levitt and in addition he would contend that the Summers act under which Justice Willis Van Devanter retired, is unconstitutional.

Deny Any Animus.

Both Kelly and Levitt denied any animus toward the new justice on the ground of his former Klan membership, asserting their challenges were because of purely legal objections.

Thus did the New Deal gain a vote on the high tribunal which blocked some of its most important recovery and reform policies. Black, because of his senate record, is expected to join the "liberal" bloc-to-3 majority.

MASONS HOLD RALLY.

MADISON, Ga., Oct. 4.—Masonic lodges of Morgan county held a religious educational rally here yesterday at which the Rev. Y. A. Bailey was the principal speaker.

At that time the President stated only that he had not had an opportunity to communicate with Justice Black and could make no statement until Black's return to the United States.

In reply to a question, he then said he did not know of Black's Klan membership at the time he appointed him, but he declined to answer a question as to whether he would have appointed Black had he known he was a Klan member. He has added nothing whatever to this statement.

DEMOCRATIC SPLIT ENVISAGED BY FISH

Alignment of Liberals With G.O.P. Seen If New Dealer Is Nominated.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Representative Fish, Republican, New York, predicted tonight that there will be a fierce fight for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940 between the "Roosevelt element, composed of radicals and Socialists," and "the liberals and conservatives."

For that reason, he said, he is unable to agree with the prediction by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, that "the New Deal" will continue in power after 1940.

If the Democrats nominate President Roosevelt or one of his "ardent New Deal followers," Fish said, "liberal and constitutional Democrats will align themselves with the Republicans, at least temporarily, provided the latter liberalize their policies and leadership."

Without such liberalization, he added, the dissatisfied Democrats will form an independent party and "the Republicans will not carry any more states than they did in 1932 or 1936."

Defeat of the Roosevelt element at the next party convention, Fish said, would result in its alignment with the Farmer-Labor party, which he said would be headed by Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin; John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, or Mayor La Guardia, of New York.

CLAN WAR ECHO
FOLLOWS BLACK

Foe of K.K.K. Is Admitted to Supreme Court.

By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Hugo L. Black, as best he could, put the Ku Klux Klan behind him before becoming an active member of the supreme court, but he had hardly taken his seat on the high tribunal Monday when a ramification of the Klan controversy was injected into the courtroom scene.

The nine justices filed through the heavy crimson drapes in back of the bench and took their seats at the stroke of noon.

The spectators leaned forward in utter silence as Chief Justice Hughes announced the accession to the bench of Mr. Justice Black.

Hardly had the chief justice finished speaking when Attorney General Cummings, one of Mr. Black's staunchest supporters, stepped forward and moved the admission to the bar of Max Spekle, one of his special assistants in the Department of Justice.

The irony of this situation was lost on some in the courtroom, but there were many who knew that Spekle, some 13 years ago, had played a part in breaking up the Klan in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Justice Black, his face impassive, stared straight ahead as Spekle's application for admission was approved.

F. D. R. DECLINES
BLACK COMMENT

President Has Not Yet Read Justice's Address.

By JAY G. HAYDEN.

(Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 4.—President Roosevelt continued today as he has throughout his western trip, to refuse to answer any inquiries addressed to him with respect to Justice Hugo L. Black or his connection with the Ku Klux Klan.

The reply to all such inquiries is that Mr. Roosevelt did not hear Justice Black's statement and he has had no opportunity so far to read it. Therefore, it is said, his statement made in a press conference at Washington, immediately after the first disclosure as to Black's Klan membership was made, still stands as all he has to say on the subject.

At that time the President stated only that he had not had an opportunity to communicate with Justice Black and could make no statement until Black's return to the United States.

Girl Student's Nose for News Nets Her $5

Dorothy Hayes, 771 Edgewood avenue, showing a Constitution staff writer yesterday how she gets down to work when she tries her hand at amateur reporting. Miss Hayes, a student at Bass Junior High school, with three companions last week found a street car conductor's money changer. It contained $35 in cash and 100 tickets. She immediately telephoned the "Photo Tip Editor" of The Constitution. The story made front page material with a picture. Today Dorothy is $5 richer as this was the best photo tip of the week.

Student Tells Thrill of Reporting And Plans to 'Snoop' Rest of Life

'It Was Swell-Fun and Exciting,' Says Girl Who Wins $5 for Best Photo Tip of Week; She Crashed First Page on Her First Effort.

By MAXINE LAND.

Dorothy Hayes, 14-year-old student at Bass Junior High school, became a first-class reporter, developed a nose for news, tested her reportorial ability and won five dollars last week in one fell swoop.

She definitely has a nose for news it was learned when her excellent tip to the Photo Tip Editor of The Constitution made front-page story material. So she won $5 for calling in the tip to The Constitution. It was the best photo tip of the week.

Yesterday at her home at 771 Edgewood avenue, the young girl was very excited over her first stab at reporting.

She said:

"I have always wanted to be a reporter. I think every girl wants to be at some time in her life."

Excited at Story.

"It was most thrilling to me to call the paper and, just like a regular reporter, give my story over the phone. Then, of course, I waited for it to appear in the paper. When it made front page I was so excited I didn't know what to do. It was swell fun!"

Dorothy's tip was that she, along with three of her classmates at Bass Junior High school, had found a street car conductor's money changer dropped from a passing automobile at Edgewood avenue and Waverly way. The changer contained $35 and 100 street car tickets.

Dorothy and her companions, Esther Dixon, of 11 Krog street; Geneva Pye, 38 Waverly way, and Florence Heery, of 820 Dixie, called the Georgia Power Company first, then immediately called The Constitution.

"We've all decided now that we are going around snooping the rest of our lives, just to see if we can't find another good story," she said.

Score Called in Tip.

More than a score of persons called The "Constitution Tip Editor" reporting the five-story suicide plunge from a hotel window last Thursday afternoon, but the one dollar award goes to the man who got his story into The Constitution editorial room first. He won by an eyelash for as he was giving the information to the "Tip Editor" a second call came and then followed a deluge of calls.

These are the kinds of "reporters" that the "Tip Editor" wants on the job. NEWS when IT IS news rates high—along with pictures of events when they happen.

Other winners of "photo tip" dollars last week were: Mrs. E. J. Sabo, 497 Dargan place, for her story of the "Lost Letter"; M. R. Hensley, 487 Ashby street, S. W., for a car; G. W. Wallace, 507 Center street, who called in the story of the "Little Old Lady," and Miss Jimmie Lee Conner, 404 Glen Irish drive, for her story of "The Hospital Romance."

publisher's right. It is the sole right of a free people and the newspapers are but the trustees of that right."

Speaking on "the case for the German press," Friedrich Aunagen, lecturer on German-American relations, warned against judging the German press by American standards.

A similar statement on behalf of the Italian press was made by Captain Ugo V. d'Annunzio.

Speaking for Russia, Constantine Oumansky, charge d'affaires of the U. S. S. R. embassy, said: "The Soviet press was born free and remains free. The freedom of our press is limited only by the will of our people to live in a Socialist society."

Concluding the session, Dorothy Thompson, political commentator, challenged Aunagen's assertion that the German press—or the Italian or Russian—creates an intelligent attitude on national issues and entertains its readers.

In one of the welcoming speeches Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made a plea for honesty and integrity in personal and international relations.

"One of the great causes of trouble in the world today is the distrust we have for each other, which brings about fear, and fear is the basis of all our other evils," she said.

Syphilis Campaign.

The campaign against syphilis hinges to a great extent upon the co-operation of the women of the nation, United States Surgeon General Thomas Parran said at the session.

"It is my personal belief," he said, "that we shall have no real progress against this plague until unless the women of this nation are aware of the problem and demand action."

The two fundamental steps in this campaign, he said, were medical examinations of marrying couples and of pregnant women.

Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, urged that America "launch a counter-offensive with every possible weapon at her disposal."

ALL NIPPON THROWS ENERGIES INTO WAR

Business Leaders Assert Japan Can Support Conflict for Indefinite Period.

By FRANK H. HEDGES.

(Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

TOKYO, Oct. 4.—Reluctant as many Japanese may have been to see their country enter upon the present unofficial war with China, there can be no doubt that misgivings have been put to one side. The empire stands as a single unit today in its determination to pursue the present campaign to completion.

The address to the nation by Premier Prince Fumimaro Kono, based upon the imperial message to the diet, has become the platform of both government and people. The premier pointed out that the struggle could not be won by the army alone, but needed the help of every Japanese in every walk of life. He emphasized that only by winning a decision now could future generations be safe from further Sino-Japanese warfare.

Business leaders, with wide experience, quite naturally take a long-range view of the whole crisis. In private conversation, they are quite frank to say that the war may go on for several years—although they devoutly hope not—and assert that Japanese capital and resources are adequate to carry it on for an indefinite period. This is predicated on the conflict being confined to Japan and China.

Bankers assure your correspondent that the empire can finance the whole China campaign on the domestic market. They add that four times or more the vast sums (vast for Japan, which is not a really wealthy country) could be thus obtained without endangering the national credit.

In only one instance has there been a genuine test of strength in the domestic field, and that between the military extremists and right-wing fascists on the one hand, as against the liberals and most of the capitalists on the other. While not complete, the victory goes to the latter group.

Wine Permits Revoked.

Council's session yesterday lasted five hours, with long debates over parking meters, fireworks and beer and wine permits taking up most of the time.

Among several beer and wine permits revoked yesterday was that of the Royal Cafe, at 50 Auburn avenue, which Alderman Roy Callaway and Councilman J. Allen Couch opposed. Refusal of the police committee to grant a permit to W. C. Torres to sell beer and wine at 1010 Pryor street, where Murray Harmon operated, was sustained after a bitter fight led by Callaway.

Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen, fought for the police committee recommendations to be carried out. However, he and Councilman John T. Marler asked council not to revoke the permit of H. E. Lindsey, Gordon street dealer, declaring Lindsey had not sold beer on Sunday as previously charged.

Council approved granting a permit to the William R. Service System, Inc., to operate a detective agency here. This subject at the last session created the split between the mayor and several councilmen that ended in caustic remarks from both sides.

Sewer Cash Accepted.

Formality of accepting $30,000 from the United States in the metropolitan sewer system program was voted unanimously, as one of the few financial matters before the body. Recommended by the finance committee, $5,000 was approved from recorder's court fines for additional prison supplies, and $2,000 was given the schools as required by law.

To arrange a city of Atlanta booth at the Southeastern fair, $150 was voted to be spent by Raymond W. Torres, city engineer. Payment of $3,500 to Mrs. George C. Mizell for property was authorized also.

Fulton and DeKalb legislative delegations were asked in a resolution introduced by Councilman E. A. Minor to obtain legislation necessary to confiscate cars used in the lottery business. In a suggested law, not only cars and trucks but "boats and vessels" used in transporting lottery paraphernalia would be seized and sold by the state as well. The Alderman board concurred in all actions of council yesterday.

Europe, and the raising of the ban on war supplies for the Valencian government.

These moves would be aimed to neutralize the acknowledged presence of strong Italian detachments with the forces of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Informed quarters in Paris and London described the situation as "serious," particularly if Italy should boycott the conference. They felt, however, that the immediate cold reaction of Rome should not be taken as a final decision of the invitation.

'Sweethearts' Leave Grady Hospital

Grady's "sweethearts" had both gone yesterday.

"Flip," of the team "Ann and Flip," went home after two years and nine months spent in the hospital under constant care of doctors and nurses. During all that time he lived with a tube in his throat.

His full name is Philip Leitch, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Leitch, of Route 3, Atlanta. His companion at the hospital, who also breathed through a silver tube, was Little Ann Gaddis, who was dismissed Thursday.

Last week physicians removed "Flip's" silver windpipe and pronounced him cured.

common problems for which the proposed talks could provide scope. In particular they pointed at his cherished recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

A message from Mussolini to Franco expressing the "most fervent wishes" for an insurgent victory was not minimized, however, in its bearing on the Anglo-French effort to force the withdrawal of Italian volunteers from Spain.

MYSTERIOUS EXPLOSION
FOLLOWS SUB HUNT

ALICANTE, Spain, Oct. 4.—(AP)

An exciting six-hour hunt for a pirate submarine by seven British destroyers and two seaplanes apparently ended tonight with a mysterious explosion and fire at sea.

No explanation was given by the searchers looking for a submarine of unknown nationality that earlier launched a torpedo against a British destroyer.

Shore observers, however, heard numerous explosions and reported that depth bombs and torpedoes were used. At least one was followed by a large column of smoke over the sea for ten minutes.

At present, he said, it would be dangerous to send central army troops to the north because Japanese were engaged in a flanking movement in Hopeh and Shansi provinces. If the Japanese succeed, he said, the Chinese force north of the Yellow river would be in danger of being cut off.

938 STUDEBAKERS OFFER NEW STYLES IN BODY DESIGN

Wider and Lower Cars Put on Display; Three Models Included.

The 1938 Studebakers, with bodies six inches wider and with the center of gravity 26 inches from the ground, were on display at Atlanta showrooms yesterday. Motorists this year may choose their Studebakers from three lines—the President, the Commander and the Six.

Eight-cylinder, 110-horsepower engines power the President, while the Commander and Six have six-cylinder, 90-horsepower engines. The President has a 122-inch wheelbase, the other models 116.5-inch base.

Many Styled.
Bodies in many styles are designed by Studebaker in conjunction with Robert Loewy, noted style engineer, and interiors are by Studebaker stylists and Helen Wyden. The new bodies give additional passenger room and provide larger luggage compartments. The new models are equipped with a vacuum gear shift to eliminate the shift lever in the front compartment. This feature is optional, however.

The President's frame is 18 per cent lighter than its predecessor and shows a 70 per cent increase in overall rigidity. Commander and Six frames are eight pounds lighter and over 300 per cent stronger in overall torsional rigidity. Overall torsional rigidity means safety, strength and "hand-ability."

Secret of Frame.
A straight tie, without offset, of the center cross member between the frame side members is the secret of the new frame, engineers say. All twisting or crank action has been eliminated by this engineering.

Other mechanical improvements include the turning of the transmission gears on the side, eliminating the tunnel in the front floor boards, the free-wheeling and overdrive, a new type of clutch that decreases pedal effort, larger brakes, improved steering.

Doors are wider at the bottom than at the top. Sedan front doors measure 34 1-2 inches in width. Rotary door locks are provided.

Cotton is a major crop in 16 states.

SEC AIDE 'LET OUT'; COMMISSION IS HIT

Simpson Charges Agency Failed to Use Power To Save Stocks.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—Kemper Simpson announced today that he had been "let out" as economic advisor to the Securities Commission, which he declared had failed to exercise powers which would have lessened the severity of the recent stock market decline.

In a statement to newsmen, he asserted in three years with the commission he had done what he could to have the agency "restrain the recurrence of undue speculative activity."

Although saying he did not blame the commission entirely for the "boom" in stock prices in 1935 and 1936 nor the recent reaction in the market, Simpson added: "If the commission had used its powers and influences properly that reaction would certainly have been less severe."

In his statement, Simpson said the agency had compromised in drafting requirements for registering securities.

"In order to induce corporations to register (securities), Simpson said, the commission "made significant compromise with the clear and unmistakable statement of the whole truth, which the spirit of the securities act calls for and which the Federal Trade Commission head earlier insisted on."

"Thus, a corporation with a skeleton in its closet was able to refund at lower rates of interest without even giving the public a good look inside."

KIWANIANS TO OFFER
SECOND FAIR PROGRAM

A second program by an Atlanta civic club in connection with the Southeastern Fair will be presented today by Kiwanians at their regular weekly luncheon meeting. Rotarians yesterday celebrated the centennial and the approaching opening of the fair.

Ivan Allen, author of "Atlanta From the Ashes," will speak at the Kiwanis meeting at 12:30 today in the Ansley hotel, along with Walter C. Hendrix, Alfred C. Newell and Mike Benton. George A. Giese, vice president of Kiwanis, will preside.

Civilians at the Atlanta Athletic Club today will hear Dr. C. R. Stauffer, First Christian church pastor, discuss "Religion and Modern Life." The Optimist Club will plan its fall program.

3,200,000 Students Face Long Holiday

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 4.—(P)—A long holiday was in prospect for 3,200,000 of Poland's school children tonight as 70,000 striking teachers voted to stay away from the schools "until victory is won."

The grammar-grade teachers struck because the government ousted officials of the Teachers' union on the grounds they were tainted with "Communism and Pacifism." The government appointed a commissioner to run the union.

Poultry Fancier Nabs Opossum As Chicken Thief

Quick action of an irate poultry fancier in the early hours yesterday morning resulted in the capture of a four-legged chicken thief and saved County Policemen W. L. Duncan and Fred Bradford a midnight trip.

Shortly after midnight Desk Sergeant Ralph Carroll's lonesome vigil was interrupted by the jangling of the telephone and the perturbed voice of Mrs. F. L. Corley reporting thieves in her chicken house.

"Officers Bradford and Duncan, proceed at once to 937 Stewart avenue, investigate chicken theft," a radio call went out to cruising officers.

A moment later, however, the police phone rang again and Mrs. Corley triumphantly informed the sergeant that her husband had ventured into the squawking henhouse and captured the thief—a fat possum.

"Officers Bradford and Duncan, attention—chicken thief at 937 Stewart avenue has been captured. Cancel the call," a second radio call went out.

YUGOSLAVIA SHIFTS SEVEN MINISTERS

Changes Ordered as Foes Form Front.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 4.—(P)—Premier Milan Stoyadinovich's government quickly and unexpectedly made seven changes in the cabinet today.

The action came in the face of a new opposition movement in which four opposition parties—Democratic, Radical, Serbian Peasant and Croatian Peasant—were preparing to sign an agreement to unite. The group claims 60 per cent of the country's vote.

Opposition leaders said their aim was "to end Stoyadinovich's dictatorial regime."

The following were given posts in the cabinet: Milan Simonovitch, as minister of justice; Bogoljub Kudjundjitch, as minister of commerce; Dobrovoje Stosovitch, as minister of public works; Vojka Chvrkitch, as minister of communications; Vekoslav Militch, as minister of physical education; Niko Novakovitch, as minister without portfolio, and Dimitrij Magarsheitch as minister of education.

COMMUNIST LEADER HURLS COURT THREAT

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—A young Communist leader today defied democracy as "a form of government in which majority rule dominates and guarantees a safeguard for the minority," and told a legislative committee he would challenge in the supreme court any suppression of the party in Massachusetts.

"The Communist party," Frankfield said, "is unalterably opposed to anti-Semitic activities."

He paused, pounded the table, then added "and we're opposed to the Ku-Klux Klan, too."

KREUGER INVESTORS LOSE PREFERENCE SUIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(P)—Federal Judge Mandelbaum, in an opinion filed today, held that holders of participating debentures of Kreuger & Toll, the holding company used by the late Ivar Kreuger to direct his financial manipulations, had no ranking claim against the company.

Judge Mandelbaum's decision agreed with a ruling of the Swedish supreme court. The case was brought by Lee, Higginson & Company, with claims in the amount of $40,000,000, as trustees for holders of the American certificates.

CONVICTS SCORN FOOD IN STRIKE

New Parole Rules at Joliet
One of Complaints as 3, 000 Are Kept in Cells.

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 4.—(P)—Three thousand convicts, locked in their cells in the Stateville penitentiary, were fed on a "take it or leave it" cafeteria basis tonight as Warden Joseph E. Ragen sought to break a "hunger strike" which 200 prisoners started at breakfast.

Guards wheeled cartloads of food down the cellblock corridors, handing the supper through locked and barred doors to those wanting it. Four hundred other inmates not involved in the strike, who performed their usual daily tasks in the prison shops, were fed in the dining room as usual.

Warden Ragen said 900 inmates in "B" cellhouse ate supper in their cells but about half the 600 in each of "C," "D" and "E" cellhouses refused the food.

The warden estimated about 1,000 in all refused to eat supper. Saying the quality and variety of food was one complaint of the prisoners, most of whom earlier in the day spent their meal periods by rattling their tin cups and dishes, Warden Ragen made public the menus.

For dinner the convicts were given hamburger steak, boiled potatoes, gravy, fresh vegetables, bread and coffee. Lunch consisted of beef stew, dumplings, vegetables, bread and coffee. Stewed

COUNTY AID ASKED ON SEWING PROJECT

WPA Project Here Employing
1,143 Contingent on $36,000 Grant.

Continuance of a WPA sewing project in Fulton county employing 1,143 persons with a semi-monthly pay roll of $24,000 is contingent upon a grant of $3,000 monthly from the county commission, it was revealed yesterday.

In a letter to the county commission L. B. Barrett, WPA resident engineer, asserted that a monthly allotment from the county is "absolutely necessary" to maintain the project. The money is needed to purchase textiles and other materials used by women employed on the project, he said.

Board to Get Letter.
Barrett's letter will be referred to the commission in its regular October meeting tomorrow afternoon, Frank Fling, clerk of the commission, said.

Pointing out an estimated monthly benefit of $57,000 to Atlanta, money spent by women employed on the project, the letter said that continuance of the project would be to the city's and county's advantage.

Get Finished Goods.
Heretofore the county has never participated in financing the project, the funds being furnished by the government.

Approximately $100,000 worth of garments and other finished goods have been furnished the city and county through the work of the project since it was launched in 1935, Barrett's letter said, and added that $1,684,987.47 has been spent for maintenance of the work during the two years.

VICKERS FACES TRIAL IN SLAYING TODAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(P)—One million railroad workers calculated pay increases amounting to $133,000,000 a year tonight.

An agreement providing a raise of 44 cents a day for 250,000 members of the Brotherhoods of Engineers, Firemen, Conductors, Trainmen and Switchmen was signed by union chiefs and representatives of 86 carriers late last night. The new scale, retroactive to October 1, meant they would receive $35,000,000 more each year if operations continue at the 1936 rate.

Twin Kissed by Mate, Wife Asks Annulment

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(P)—A husband's dilemma in distinguishing his wife from her twin sister—when passing out kisses—led official Referee John O'Gorman today to decide he had to do some heavy thinking in supreme court.

Referee O'Gorman reserved decision on the case, involving the application for an annulment by Mrs. Mary Jane Swank Cook, twin No. 1, from her husband, Harry Brown Cook.

Mary Jane charged that Twin No. 2, Jean Swank, was the recipient of "mistaken identity" kisses proffered by her husband. "It was," said the 18-year-old dancer, "all very embarrassing."

MADRID BOMBARDED IN REBEL REPRISAL FOR LOYALIST DRIVE

Insurgents Race Winter in Attempt To Capture City of Gijon.

MADRID, Oct. 4.—(P)—Central Madrid was subjected to a heavy bombardment today in retaliation for a surprise early morning government attack south of the city, which advanced Loyalist lines 800 yards beyond Usera.

Working secretly from the bloody trench which they captured last week, Loyalists during the past three nights filtered into the ruined suburb of Usera where they occupied about 75 workers' houses lying in the no-man's land.

These troops, working mostly at night, constructed communicating trenches on the outlying front.

which today they occupied with capture of all the houses. The government troops advanced within 15 yards of the enemy trenches running across Sierra Blanca hill. During the occupation there was spirited hand-to-hand fighting with grenades and bayonets before the enemy blew up the communicating trench and dropped back to straighten its lines.

REBELS RACE WINTER IN ADVANCE ON GIJON

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Oct. 4.—(P)—Spanish insurgent troops tonight pushed slowly through a thick, soupy fog that settled over the Asturian hills spurred on by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's command that "Gijon must be taken."

Chilling rains and occasional snows favor the Asturian defenders of the Gijon area, last hold of the government on the Bay of Biscay. For Franco, the campaign has become a race with winter.

The Leon column, directed by General Miguel Aranda, captured Mulleina peak and number of Asturian positions east of Grandas and Sierra Runson.

Heavy rains deluged eastern Spain's widespread Aragon war-front. Trenches became mud gulches. There was one minor engagement—a government thrust on the Jaca front in the bombardment of the Teruel-Zaragoza railroad.

FRANKLIN JR. IS PLEDGED. UNIVERSITY, Va., Oct. 4.—(UP)—Frank D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the President, has been pledged by Delta Psi fraternity at the University of Virginia, it was announced today.

"Thanks, Chief!" this four-month-old puppy seems to tell Assistant Chief of Police A. J. Holcombe. The police officer is shown wrapping the dog's leg, which was injured when the pup was struck yesterday by a hit-and-run motorist at Ponce de Leon and Moreland avenues. Frank Wooten, of 1161 Ponce de Leon, saw the dog struggle to his feet after being hit and vainly try to reach the sidewalk on three legs. Wooten picked up the dog, fashioned a splint for the broken leg and took her to the police station. Police are seeking to find her master.

3,000 POUNDS OF RICE WAIT GROUP WEDDINGS

CROWLEY, La., Oct. 4.—(P)—Ten young couples will be married here tomorrow around an altar banked with new-mown rice.

Fifty of the prettiest girls from communities in the region where the crop is grown are to ring the brides and bridegrooms, and in a larger ring will be the 208-piece band of Louisiana State University, playing nuptial music.

Does Your Cough Embarrass You?

Do people shrug their shoulders and turn away their faces when you cough near them? Stop this embarrassing, and end your worry over that awful cough by getting relief offered by Creomulsion, the formula that thousands of people, who really know their drugs, use in their families.

In Creomulsion, effective doses of Beechwood Glycerate are blended, by a special process, with six other real cough and cold remedies which aid nature to soothe and heal inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, do not be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the results obtained from the very first bottle. Ask your druggist for Creomulsion.

Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief that you want. (Adv.)

Fowl Are Mated Though Parted By 200 Miles

FRENCHTOWN, N. J., Oct. 4.—(P)—Science spanned 200 miles of land and water today to mate a batch of Rhode Island Red roosters with Rhode Island Red roosters by remote control, and then turned the experiment over to time and nature.

Joseph P. Quinn, poultry geneticist of the National Agricultural Research Center, estimated that hundreds of eggs were fertilized by inoculating 300 hens with nine billion spermatozoa.

They brought the spermatozoa from Maryland, continually chilled at 40 degrees in a special container, and said some of the cells were almost 24 hours old before each of the hens got one-tenth of a cubic centimeter, or 15 million spermatozoa.

Quinn and Quinn said they were conducting the experiment privately, not under the auspices of the Beltsville Center, and added it was the first time chicken egg fertilization had been attempted between such widely separated fowl.

The resulting eggs, they said, would be placed in incubators this week for hatching and later study of the percentage successfully fertilized.

Lessening of Reverence Big Peril To Religious Life, Asserts Chamlee

Old-Fashioned Notions Still Hold Good, He Tells Ministers.

By LOUIE D. NEWTON, President Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association.

"The persistent disposition of a lot of people to try to laugh hell out of consideration in this life or in the life to come is one of the greatest perils of our day and generation," said Dr. Aquila Chamlee, president of the Georgia Baptist Convention and Bessie Tift College, in an address to the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association yesterday at the First Baptist church. He also said:

"It seems to me that we have allowed ourselves as Christians to lose sight somewhat of the inescapable teachings of the Bible concerning right and wrong—the sure punishment of sin in this life and in the life to come. I know that it is regarded as one of the evidences of cleverness today to smile about the old-fashioned notions that your sin will find you out and that the wages of sin is death, and it is this very thing that is making it so hard to hurtling religion today," continued President Chamlee.

Truth Needs Emphasis. "Another truth which I believed needs emphasis today is the declaration of the scriptures that we are to have a reason for the faith that is in us. Are we certain that the Bible confirms our creeds? Without a knowledge of the Bible no man can be certain with reference to his beliefs, and certainly we cannot please God unless we know what He has to say on every subject. This we may know if we are willing to search the scriptures. They testify of Him, revealing His will for every soul."

"One of the greatest dangers in our religious life today is the upsurge of lessening of reverence. This fact was forcefully brought to my own mind recently when an organist was leading a group of young people in a moment of meditation as she played that grand old hymn, 'Rock of Ages.'"

"In the midst of the hymn, she had another group of people, stationed behind a curtain, start singing, 'Brighten the Corner Where You Are,' accompanied by a piano. After the break, she returned to the organ with 'Rock of Ages.' The effect was overwhelming. Neither the words or the music of the popular little song could minister to their hearts like the tested hymn of truth and trust. The trouble with the world today is the fact that we are trying to brighten it up with veneers of our own making instead of bringing to its darkness the light of God's love."

In Home Life Too. "I observe this lack of reverence not only in our public worship, but in our home life and in our social relationships everywhere. There are certain sanctities that must be maintained, that must be revered. If we cease to be gentlemen and gentlewomen, we have lost something of priceless worth in our civilization. Reverence for God, reverence for truth, reverence for personality, reverence for manhood, reverence for beauty, is a quality of soul which I pray we shall never lose."

"The world forms its opinion of the church and religion by what it sees in those of us who call ourselves Christians. The greatest liability of the great Sunday school movement today is the daily lives of the Sunday school teachers. We had just as well understand once and for all that we can't stand up Sunday morning and talk about temperance and law observance and all these other qualities of goodness and go right out and take a drink and get anywhere with those we are trying to teach. What we are still speaks louder than what we say. And what is true for the Sunday school teacher is equally true for the preacher and every other religious leader."

Wonderful Moving Story. "The telephone people tell us a wonderful moving story about the operator who stayed at her post of duty in a western valley where a flood was descending upon the people—stayed there getting her message through until she was swept away to death. She saved the people of the valley at the cost of her own life. She got the message through."

"I want to see that sort of earnestness grip the heart of preachers and teachers everywhere until this world will be fully and clearly and lovingly warned of the impending death of sin which ever threatens every soul that has not trusted in the great Pilot. It doesn't matter whether we live, but it does matter terribly how we live," said Dr. Chamlee.

The devotional service was conducted by Dr. John R. Gunn, based on the question which John the Baptist sent to Jesus, inquiring whether he was the Saviour or not. Dr. Gunn admonished his hearers to possess their souls in patience as the Gospel in all its purity and power is proclaimed to the poor, the halt, the maim, the sick.

Truett to Speak. The speaker next Monday morning will be Dr. George W. Truett, president of the Baptist World Alliance, and the negro Baptist ministers of Atlanta and neighboring communities have been invited to meet with the white ministers to hear Dr. Truett, Dr. E. R. Carter, pastor of the Friendship Baptist church for the past 58 years, will conduct the devotional service next Monday.

'PEACHES' BROWNING IS RESIDING IN RENO. RENO, Nev., Oct. 4.—(P)—George Springmeyer, an attorney, said today Mrs. Frances Heenan Hynes, the former "Peaches" Browning, had established residence here and "may seek a divorce from Bernard Hynes, Denver theater operator."

Although Mrs. Hynes could not be reached, her presence in Reno was confirmed by Springmeyer. Springmeyer said "if" a divorce suit is filed, the charge probably will be "simple mental cruelty."

Mrs. Hynes, whose first husband was Edward W. "Daddy" Browning, was married to Hynes at Tuckahoe, N. Y., February 24, 1894.

GERMANY ALONE OPPOSED TO OTTO

Austrian Monarchists Vision Hapsburg Restoration.

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—(P)—Austrian monarchists tonight asserted Germany's opposition was the only remaining foreign obstacle to restoration of the Hapsburg kings.

Baron Friedrich Von Wiesner told a meeting of sympathizers who filled three overflow meeting halls in inauguration of a new legitimist drive, that the restoration battle was two-thirds won.

"Since the old monarchy breakdown we have reversed the anti-Hapsburg mentality in Austria, and we have lessened the Little Entente's opposition to Otto return," he declared, pointing to German opposition as the last obstacle to placing Archduke Otto the Austrian pretender, on the throne.

RAFT IS SHAKEN IN TAXI ACCIDENT. BOSTON, Oct. 4.—(UP)—George Raft, slick-haired motion picture star, was slightly shaken but unhurt tonight when his taxicab struck and seriously injured a Boston motorcycle policeman who was escorting Raft and two unidentified women companions to a local radio station.

After a short delay Raft and the party, none of whom was injured, continued to the radio studio for his broadcast and later returned to a theater where he is making a two-day personal appearance.

Patrolman Francis A. Keeney, 34, who was catapulted from his motorcycle when struck from behind by the Raft cab at an intersection, was reported suffering a possible skull fracture at a hospital. Attaches said his condition was serious.

250 MEET TO BEGIN FIRST SOLICITATION IN DRIVE FOR CHEST

Volunteer Workers in Two Advance Gifts Divisions Map Campaign.

Asking Atlanta people to share with their neighbors in need, about 250 outstanding citizens met last night to launch the initial solicitation in the fifteenth annual Community Chest campaign.

The group was composed of volunteer workers in the two advance gifts divisions, whose work will be completed before the opening of the intensive campaign on October 12.

Meeting for final organization, the workers heard Preston S. Arkwright, Robert Strickland and Harry Sommers, general campaign chairman, declare that there must be no failure to raise an adequate sum this year.

"Not Adequate Job." "Atlanta has not for years done an adequate job for those thousands of people served by the 33 Community Chest agencies," Mr. Sommers said.

"Last year we failed by $50,000 to give the minimum amount needed, and this failure has resulted in much suffering. Even by stretching every dollar to the utmost, there was not enough to go around, and some of the Chest agencies were forced to turn away some persons who applied for help.

"This year we know the need, and we know that there will not be enough unless the minimum amount of $474,070 is raised.

"The amount of suffering this winter, the extent of the lack of needed services of prevention of disease, delinquency and distress, will be in direct proportion to our failure to provide the necessary funds."

Simple Principle. Mr. Strickland declared that Atlanta is well able to provide adequate care for its unfortunate citizens who are dependent upon the Chest agencies.

"If we give in accordance with a simple principle: Give once for 33 agencies and give enough for all—the total need would be met, and Atlanta would take its place among those cities which make ample provision for its needy," Mr. Strickland said.

Mr. Arkwright, who headed the advance gifts division last year, told the workers their job was simply to tell the real story of the service of these agencies, to visualize the needs of the blind, the sick and the distressed who have no other means of hope.

The two advance gifts will begin active solicitation Tuesday morning, John L. Westmoreland and John O. Chiles are leaders of the two divisions.

SPECIAL SESSION PARLEYS CONTINUE

Plans Are Progressing Satisfactorily, Governor Rivers Declares.

Plans for the special session of the general assembly this fall are progressing "satisfactorily," Governor Rivers said yesterday after the second of a series of conferences with legislators.

Attendance at the meetings has been "fairly full," he asserted, with an estimate "fully 90 per cent" of the members will attend the meetings which will continue through October 20.

He said the reaction of the legislators "appeared to be satisfactory to the program being outlined for consideration."

Seeking advice of members on steps to be taken in achieving his program of tax revision, the Governor reiterated his stand "nothing will be submitted to the general assembly unless 'a working majority' is in favor of it."

The conferences opened Saturday, when he met with representatives and senators of the first four senatorial districts. Members from the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth districts were present yesterday.

Not until the conclusion of the meetings will the Governor start assistants to drawing definite bills for consideration, and the call for the meeting probably will not be issued until November 10. No subject can be considered by the legislature unless included in the call.

The conference scheduled for the remainder of the week are: Today: Ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth districts.

Wednesday: 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th districts.

Thursday: 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th districts.

Friday: 21st, 22d, 23d and 24th districts.

Saturday: 25th, 26th, 27 and 28th districts.

Funeral services will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, with Dr. Louie D. Newton officiating. The body will be cremated.

FIRE PREVENTION URGED ON SOUTH

Citizens of southern states were reminded of National Fire Prevention Week, October 3-9, in a statement issued yesterday by Joseph C. Kirchner, southern regional forester of the United States Forest Service.

"The south has a vast stake in forestry. Its pine woods are growing in importance with the expansion of markets for their products in the paper development, as well as the brisk demands for lumber and naval stores, and the base materials for feeding these industries are far too valuable to go up in smoke," Kirchner said.

SHOW SETTING UP FOR FAIR MIDWAY

The shows will be on the midways during the 10-day showing of the 23d annual Southeastern Fair.

The exposition was unloaded Monday and within a few hours will be ready for the 10-day show.

Rubin and Cherry are not the only attractions at the fair which are getting an early start, for already more than half of the exhibitors in the three large exhibit buildings are completing their booths.

All Workmen Busy. And with the hundreds of workmen, each at his own station, Lakewood park has become a city within itself. A half-dozen lunch stands have been completed and served workmen all day Monday.

GARNER GIVEN BID TO ATTEND FETE

Vice President John N. Garner has been invited to be an honor guest at the 100th anniversary of the founding of Atlanta, October 11, at a special program at the Southeastern Fair and Atlanta Centennial.

Atlanta Day will be observed on Monday and Mayor Hartsfield and city officials will be honor guests.

Telegrams inviting Garner to Atlanta Day were sent yesterday by Governor Rivers, Mayor W. B. Hartsfield, W. Eugene Harrington, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and Mike Benton, president of the Southeastern Fair.

Trailer City, a new attraction at the fair, started operating Monday night, and already more than two dozen families have moved into the city, at the entrance of the main automobile gates. Trailer City will be free during the 10 days and a majority of out-of-town exhibitors will live in the new city for the next two weeks.

Rubin and Cherry left their winter quarters at Lakewood park early in April and after some 20,000 miles, covering 16 states, the shows have returned for a 10-day showing and another winter at the Southeastern Fair.

Finding of Body.

SYLVESTER, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—

Worth county officers today held two men and a woman pending investigation into the death of the woman's husband, a cripple, on a highway near here last night.

Sheriff J. N. Sumner said the badly mangled body of W. H. Tegan, 40, of Atlanta, was found beside the highway and his wife was some distance away.

The sheriff listed those under arrest as R. L. Nash and J. M. Fatsall, of Tifton, and Mrs. Tegan. He said Mrs. Tegan was about 60 years old.

The Tegan, he said, were hitchhiking to Tifton and were picked up in East Albany by the two Tifton men. The first report of the death came to officers, the sheriff said, from a motorist who reported he had passed a car dragging a body behind it.

The sheriff quoted the Tifton men as saying they had picked up the couple but later let them out because they were quarreling.

GRAND JURY OPENS DENHARDT HEARING AGAINST BROTHERS

Ray Garr, One of Trio Facing Indictment, Tells of Seeing 'Vision.'

By JANE DIXON.
(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
LAGRANGE, Ky., Oct. 4.—The three Garr brothers who avenged the death of their sister, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, when they shot to death her accused killer, General Henry H. Denhardt, on the eve of his second trial for her murder, in what they pleaded was self-defense, are a trio of silent men of these hills. They are unable to shake off the shadow of death that fell across their peaceful family path when the body of Mrs. Taylor was found with a bullet hole under the heart in a snow-soaked ditch at a Kentucky roadside.

Saw a Vision.
"Yes," Roy Garr, stalwart head of the family, told this correspondent only a few hours before the grand jury met today in Shelbyville to consider an indictment of the Garrs, "I saw a vision of Verna that night in Shelbyville. It was like I first saw her lying on the bed after they brought her home, dead. It was just as plain as if I'd been standing there beside her. For a second it blurred out everything, I couldn't see anything else. She was lying there, cold and still. I can't forget it. I'll never forget it."

"Right before she appeared in front of me I saw Denhardt and his lawyer, Rodes Myers, crisscrossing the street. Myers must have seen us—Doc and me—standing by our car. I heard Myers say, 'There's the Garrs,' and saw him start running. I saw Denhardt reach for his pocket and I knew it was either him or us. I guess pretty much everybody in Kentucky knows Denhardt was plenty handy with his gun. He played with guns like kids play with toys. He hated us, of course. Maybe he blamed us for the trouble between him and Verna. Anyhow, we knew he wouldn't hesitate to shoot us down like rats if he had half an excuse to do it."

Started Shooting.
"As I reached for my gun, that vision of Verna appeared. I started shooting. I don't remember taking aim. I just shot. I've hunted all my life, so I guess taking aim is second nature to me. I didn't know I'd shot him until he fell and I didn't know that Doc was shooting too. Of course we went armed. So would any man who had Denhardt for an enemy. We have a right to protect ourselves and our families."

The grand jury investigation started today with testimony of Jephtha Tracey to whom Roy and E. S. Garr handed their still smoking guns.

In event of an indictment being returned, both commonwealth and defense indicated the trial would begin soon, possibly a week from today. Each side declared itself opposed to delay.

TEXAS WOMAN VET IN 'ARMY' RANKS

Salvation Leader 'Would Do It All Over Again,' She Says.

An elderly, gray-haired Texas woman who holds the rank of major in the Salvation Army, looked back on 51 years of service with the Army yesterday and declared "I'd do it again if I had my life to relive."

Major L. Bockstette, of Dallas, donned her little black bonnet and military uniform and began her career of saving souls when she was only a girl in her teens. Yesterday, at 70, she insisted that she is still ready to "do her part," although she retired eight years ago.

Coming all the way from Texas to see her beloved general and attend the tenth annual congress of the southern territory, Major Bockstette said she was having "a grand time."

Recalling her early years with the Army, she explained that the attitude toward the organization has changed considerably since her time. "People used to come to our meetings for curiosity alone," she said, "but now they come because they really want religion."

Major Bockstette retired from her service in 1928, after 46 years as an officer in the Army.

Special officers' councils at 10:30 o'clock, 2:30 o'clock and 7:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church will be held as part of the Salvation Army convention here today. General Booth will speak at the morning and night councils.

Hiram Ellison and Lem Fullerton, of Clayton county, and William H. Pace and John Waters, of Cherokee county, all charged with violation of internal revenue laws.

HOOVER DEMANDS COURAGE BY G. O. P.

Positive Draft of Policy Urged Before Convention of Party in 1938.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A call for a "positive" and "courageous" draft of policies by a committee of "distinguished Republicans" prior to a proposed 1938 convention came from Herbert Hoover today.

The former president urged the shaping of a declaration of principles that would "meet the crisis in the party and the country" after a quick round of conferences with Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential candidate last year; Colonel Frank M. Knox, the 1936 vice presidential nominee; and Frank O. Lowden, the party's "elder statesman."

Referring to a movement to summon party chieftains to a rally before next year's congressional elections, Mr. Hoover said: "Colonel Knox and I discussed the proposal which will be before the Republican National Committee at its meeting in Chicago on November 5. We favor the creation of a committee of distinguished Republicans who will formulate a draft of fundamental principles to be submitted to a general conference of party leaders some time in the spring."

"The voice of the young members of the party should be given a place in these party councils. This declaration must be positive, courageous and free from personal politics—a declaration in fact that will meet the crisis in the party and the country."

Colonel Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, issued a statement endorsing Mr. Hoover's proposal.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 5, 1937.

TASKS FOR THE JAYCEES

Of primary importance in the agenda for the annual convention of Junior Chambers of Commerce of Georgia, to be held at Thomasville this week, is the proposal to place the entire state upon the same time basis.

There is no logical reason why Atlanta and a small segment representing approximately 20 per cent of the state's area should remain on Central Standard Time while all the rest of the state is on Eastern Standard Time. It is confusing, irritating and interferes with the proper conduct of business. It places an unnecessary handicap upon every business enterprise in Atlanta and the other Central Standard communities in every contact they have with New York and the business centers of the east, as well as in their intercourse with other sections of Georgia.

The anomaly of a state divided into two time zones should be ended. It will result in immeasurable business and social advantage for the whole state.

Also prominent in the list of subjects to be discussed at the Jaycee gathering is the menace of cattle roaming loose on the highways. If the Jaycees can solve this problem and remove this danger from the arteries of motor travel in Georgia, they will have performed an outstanding service.

Modern travel involves sufficient danger, under the best of conditions. That cattle should be permitted to roam at will over highways is one of the strange medieval survivals of an otherwise intelligent people. Efforts to end this menace by law have hitherto failed. If the Jaycees can so arouse public sentiment that passage of a fence law by the legislature results, the death and injury toll among Georgia, and visiting, motorists will show an appreciable decrease.

Another item of importance on the Thomasville program is the proper grading of farm produce. Raisers of farm and garden products in this state handicap themselves by bringing their goods to market ungraded. Purchasers, naturally, turn to the produce of other states which reaches the market place properly packed and graded. A large proportion of the 8,000 carloads of imported produce that is consumed in Georgia annually would not be necessary if all raisers of vegetables, fruit, etc., in this state offered their wares in desirable manner.

These, and other problems of vital welfare to the state as a whole, are to be considered by the Jaycees at their convention. There are no organizations with record for achievement surpassing that of the Junior Chambers. There is real hope of progress when they undertake to seek cures for undesirable conditions.

TO BALANCE THE BUDGET

President Roosevelt, during his western tour, has reiterated in various speeches his promise to balance the federal budget. Nothing he could tell the nation would bring greater approval. Men in every section, in all walks of life, realize that no government can continue to spend more than its income and they have worried at the mounting federal deficit.

The new prosperity which has come to the nation since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration gives ample cause for rejoicing, but until the federal budget is balanced there can be no real assurance that the happier condition is here to stay. With national outgo exceeding income there is always the fear of a debacle for any program and there is always the uneasy knowledge that a day of reckoning is ahead.

It is expected that when congress meets and draws up a new tax act, there will be little important change in the national tax system. There is apt to be a tightening here or there, to close gaps through which some groups are now escaping the tax collector, but the basis will probably be left largely unchanged.

Federal expenditures next year, even on the present program, are anticipated at $1,500,000,000 less than this year. Tax income is expected to increase about $2,000,000,000. Thus there will be a closure of $3,500,000,000 in the gap between expenditures and revenue.

Economists see this total as the amount to be withdrawn from federal contributions to general business in the country and foresee an increase in private business activity sufficient to offset this.

If these predictions prove accurate, the nation, with its budget balanced in accordance with the President's promise, will at last be on a firm foundation and ready to enjoy and to increase the new prosperity which has come since Roosevelt's first Inauguration Day in 1933.

The utter disappearance of a couple of Russian generals in Paris is disturbing, as patrons at the night club now have to open their own taxi doors.

If the Justice Black situation needs a theme melody, there is "K-K-Katy."

DUCAL AVOCATIONS

If the Duke of Windsor and his American Duchess visit Georgia during their projected tour of the United States, Edward should quickly feel thoroughly at home in this state. For, like most other states of the south, Georgia is more closely linked by blood and interest to Britain than are the states of the east, north and west. Anglo-Saxon blood is purer in the south and there is less mingling of the population with other nationalities of the world.

Likewise, through the cotton grown in the south and much of it, spun into textiles in the looms of Lancashire, there is an economic unity of interest that holds this state and this section close to the old land.

Edward of Windsor announces that the primary objective of his visit to the United States is to study housing and labor conditions. He will find in the two Atlanta projects, Techwood and the University Homes for Negroes, the most successful of the federal-financed slum-clearance projects yet completed in this country.

That Edward should find chief occupation for his mind since abdication of the British throne in housing and labor problems is but to be expected. As Prince of Wales, as well as during his brief tenure on the British throne, he displayed a keen interest in the welfare of the lower income groups in his own country. In fact it was rumored that his sympathy for the plight of striking Welsh coal miners was an undercover factor in the situation which forced him to give up his throne.

He has always been extremely popular with the average British working classes. If, out of his study of housing conditions for poorer people, he can bring about an acceleration in the world movement to improve human habitations, he will have found an avocation that will fully justify his existence and make him a potent factor for world progress, even if he is a virtual exile from his own country.

Atlanta would extend a welcome overflowing with cordiality and enthusiasm to the Duke and Duchess. And, undeniably, they can learn something important concerning better housing here.

HOT-HEADED COMMENT

Philippine President Manuel Quezon denounces a court decision withholding compensation from the family of a worker drowned while carrying out orders of the firm for which he worked. Quezon emphasized his disapproval of the decision by ordering government contracts withheld from the company involved.

The indignation of President Quezon is thoroughly understandable and American public opinion will agree with him that the judicial action is tinged with "inhumanity." While details of the case, including the grounds on which the ruling was based, are lacking, it is incomprehensible to Americans that compensation should be refused in the case of a worker who dies as the result of obeying orders of his employer.

President Quezon, however, let anger overthrow discretion when he said, in commenting on the case, "A twentieth century jurist who handles law as one in the sixteenth century belongs in the cemetery."

That hot-headed remark is, in effect, advance condemnation of crime. Any misdeed fanatic in Manila who, having heard that quotation, should assassinate the judge in the case could justifiably claim that the murder was suggested by the President.

Intemperate exaggeration always weakens protest. President Quezon, in his general criticism of the incident, had reason and public sympathy upon his side. His closing remark does all the good that was contained in his basic resentment.

AN ENDURING MEMORIAL

Edgar F. Allen, businessman of Elyria, Ohio, died a few days ago. His passing draws attention to a service performed during life which was designed as a memorial to his dead son, but which will continue through many years to come as a constructive contribution for the lessening of human suffering.

Thirty years ago there was a serious interurban wreck at Elyria, in which eight people were killed. Some of those deaths, it was said afterwards, would not have occurred had Elyria possessed adequate hospital facilities.

Among the eight victims was Allen's son. The father, a prominent businessman of the community, determined that the lack of a hospital should be remedied.

He organized the Elyria Memorial Hospital Association, campaigned to raise funds, gave liberally of his own money and established a fine hospital in memory of the son who had died. Later, Mr. Allen retired from private business to become treasurer and manager of the new hospital.

Now the father has joined his son. But the splendid hospital he built stands as a permanent memorial not only to the boy he loved, but to the father, too.

FRESHMEN AT 70

(From the Detroit News.)

One's first reaction to the singular item from Elgin, Ill., which records the opening of a school for people over 70, with enrollment of 30 enthusiastic students, is one of skeptical questioning in such terms as "What's the sense of studying at their age?" How can they make use of what they learn? On reflection, however, the thought arises that these elderly freshmen are very well advised.

The education offered to the young nowadays tends to be constantly narrowed along strictly vocational lines, with the object of equipping the recipient to earn his living in a special field. It necessarily leaves untouched great areas of knowledge which in less hurried times would be explored merely for the satisfaction of curiosity and the enlargement and enrichment of the mind, and often throughout a working career one has little leisure to repair this deficiency. But minds that are truly alive and active remain aware of it, and hunger for the nourishment they know they have missed.

The 70-year-old Elgin matriculates are intellectually hungry but, unlike too many others, they are not resigned to remaining unfulfilled. In age, usually regarded as life's twilight, they recognize a morning of opportunity. For, retired from economic pursuits, they at last have a chance to get what they have always wanted. And they are resolutely setting out to do it.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAUSE.

EAR TO GROUND WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The President is listening to an old mentor, one that he used to scorn.

At least that is the statement of experts whose job it has been to analyze public sentiment for the New Deal. This new adviser, they say, is the "scientific poll" of public opinion which the President has at one time or another classified, along with other straw votes, as misleading.

The poll which is said to have influenced him in making certain remarks on his western trip was the one which appeared about a month ago. It gave Vice President Garner a high place in the people's choice for President.

This poll was generally interpreted as being a demand for a middle-of-the-road course, less spending, a turn toward the right. Evidence of the fact that this has hit home is the economy talk, hitherto whispered by Secretary Morgenthau, now echoed by the President.

POLL HAS EFFECT The pulse-feelers in Washington put a lot of weight on the Garner boomlet—not that it means Garner has a chance if he would take it—but they feel that the WPA spending is losing its grip as a vote-getter. They explain it this way:

While relievers help win elections, there aren't enough of them without the rest of the folks. Before, the "rest of the folks" (some of whom were on relief then and aren't now) went along. Now they are turning against spending. Furthermore, as was shown by the last election, there is always plenty of opposition to relief in the rural districts.

Another thing that threatens the WPA is the loss of its best lobbyists—the mayors. Many of them will fail to be re-elected. The candidates who defeat them will probably come in on a wave of reaction.

All this, say insiders, President Roosevelt has seen in the crystal of the poll.

MARITIME LAW There will be quite a jolt when Chairman Kennedy, of the Maritime Commission, releases that survey of the American merchant marine, which is due about October 30.

Unless the breeze changes between now and then, you will see the skipper coming ashore and telling the American people either—or—

Either he is going to get from congress a brand-new set of specifications, or somebody else can take over. The American people are going to be told just what has to be done if they want a merchant marine. And they can't have one, say the folks who claim to know what Mr. Kennedy thinks, with the law that congress passed.

SHIPS LIKE WOMEN The trouble apparently is that ships are like women. You can't make general rules to fit any two. Conditions on shipboard and conditions in the shipping business can't be regulated under blanket rules.

When Chairman Kennedy first took over, he expressed his views on the law under which he had to work. He thought it anything but seaworthy then, but he thought it could be patched up.

As he tried to make it work, he ran into all sorts of new complications which made him positive that it couldn't and wouldn't work. The shipping companies weren't in financial shape to meet the conditions which the law specified must be met by those who obtain government subsidies.

Shippers who might have been able to keep afloat financially in fair weather couldn't beat the stress, strain and uncertainty of a labor situation rapidly growing worse.

The Dollar Line is an example. At one time it was reported that the papers were all ready to draw up and the subsidy granted. Then came the threat of labor troubles. The unions charged that the line preferred to use coolie labor rather than meet union wages. The line asserted the demands of the Maritime Commission as to its financial setup were too stringent if it had to meet the labor trouble. Then the Japanese moved on China and threw Far Eastern shipping into turmoil.

Edward Moran, former Democratic congressman from Maine, is supposed to be labor's friend on the commission.

MARITIME WAGES Some of the labor troubles which, it is predicted, will arise to make the job of the Maritime Commission harder than it is now may not come off.

If the commission announces that the minimum wage scale for government ships is to be that of the current rate paid on the Pacific coast (which the commission probably will), there probably won't be a ruckus on the Atlantic. Reason: CIO, the chief dissenter, has enough troubles and, even if the ship owners make the government's minimum their maximum, the seamen probably won't fight about it.

LEAK-PROOF TELEPHONE It was reported that Mr. Black and Mr. Roosevelt didn't talk to each other over the telephone before the Black radio speech.

Probably they didn't, but, if they had, nobody would have known it. Or almost nobody. Wherever the President goes on land, two telephone wires follow him. One for emergency. They are reserved for him and they are not "monitored" as ordinary long distance lines are. That is, where they pass through the various exchanges where an operator might listen in, in line of duty or otherwise, the plugs are sealed.

A False Premise.

A recent letter from an Atlanta woman who asks that her name not be quoted is so speciously fallacious that it is impossible to resist the impulse to comment upon it.

(Correspondents please note: Though the lady wishes to remain anonymous, she signed her letter and appended the request for omission of her name if her communication was published. This is a proper and legitimate procedure. Had she left her name off the letter it would have gone into the waste basket, promptly.)

What she proposes is application of that ancient theory that if you are ignorant of things evil they will exist. She wants the newspapers to cease publishing war news, crime news, tragic news. She wants the columns filled only with reports of success—along worthy lines—of happiness, brightness and joy.

She wouldn't, it is to be presumed, for there would be no forces at work to cure the evil. Disease and crime and degeneracy would run riot and we should all, inevitably, fall before the onslaught of unchecked evil.

No, the wise citizen wants to know all he possibly can of war and crime and other threats to his security and happiness, so that he may, insofar as possible, provide protection in advance. Just as he guards against the germs of disease by prophylaxis, against crime by maintaining a proper police force, against burglars by locks and guns, so he guards against war by an adequate army and navy of defense. And if he did not know that war existed in all its horror, he would lead his defenseless, caterpillar life only long enough for some ruthless heel of militarism to come along, step upon and squash him into oblivion.

No, madame. The war and crime news in the papers serves a very necessary and proper purpose. You can't eliminate life's tragedy just by shutting your eyes.

We Must Not "Forget the Sordid."

The lady writer says she could herself build a pillar to Heaven if she recorded, daily, the good things in her life and "forgot the sordid."

Heaven forbid that the good people of the world forget the sordid!

The sordid are all around us. The poor and unfortunate and helpless ones of life are sordid. The only way you could forget them would be to kill them all off and I imagine, even then, the memory of the massacre would remain to haunt.

If we forgot the sordid there would never be a penny in the treasury of the Community Chest. There would be no charity, no pity for the poor dogs of humanity. If we forgot the sordid, the Good Samaritan would have followed in the steps of the Pharisees and left the victim of thieves to die beside the road.

And, if we forgot the sordid, it would soon rise up to remind us in most unpleasant fashion.

For there would be no forces at work to cure the evil. Disease and crime and degeneracy would run riot and we should all, inevitably, fall before the onslaught of unchecked evil.

No, the wise citizen wants to know all he possibly can of war and crime and other threats to his security and happiness, so that he may, insofar as possible, provide protection in advance. ## FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Modern NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Fable One day a big, fat old pig was rooting around in a potato patch, and after a while he nosed up—well, he nosed up evidence of a murder. So the pig let out a yell and ran down the road hollering, "Hey, there's been a murder. There's a guy buried over in that potato patch yonder."

Well, he was an unlikeable old pig, always grunting and snuffling in a loud and unrefined manner and pushing himself forward and sounding off about what a hot shot he was, and therefore he was very unpopular personally. Moreover, he was uncommonly greedy, and he used to do all kinds of things to get more than his share at the trough and as a result of this he became very big and strong. The bigger and stronger he got the noisier he became, and after a while he was so big and noisy that he began to think that he had a mission.

He thought of himself as a force in the world, and every now and then he would pop off with a message or a solemn warning to the universe. These messages were very pompous and silly and never aroused anything but contempt, but he was so stuck on himself that he never realized it.

Well, so on this day that he nosed up evidence of a murder in the potato patch the first man he met as he ran down the road squealing his head off was the sheriff.

But the sheriff hated the pig so much that instead of getting steamed up about the murder he said, "Yes, and what were you doing rooting around in the potato patch?" You see, he was attacking the pig's motives in discovering evidence of the murder.

Hunting "I was looking for some potatoes," the pig said.

"Sure," said the sheriff. "Just as I thought. It isn't the sacredness of human life that motivated you in rooting around. Your object was to get some more potatoes for yourself."

"That isn't so," the pig said. "My life is devoted to the pursuit of truth and justice, and I just wanted the potatoes for to give to underpaid and unappreciated servants of this great country of ours. But, anyway, what difference does it make what my motives were in rooting up the patch?"

"Go on," said the sheriff. "I don't care what your motives are. I'm going to serve your interests by investigating the murder," adding, legally, "if any."

"Why, this is terrible," said the pig, and off he ran down the road, squealing, "I will tell it to some great liberals and progressives, and they will raise a hue and cry, because they are severely opposed to murder."

So pretty soon he came to a grove where a lot of liberals and progressives were having a barbecue in honor of a hero who was making a big speech.

Is There "And I tell you, my A Moral? friends," the hero was saying, "although I did attend a murder about 15 years ago, I was there solely as a politician to enlist the votes of those who did the murdering. I left their company as soon as their votes were elected, and I haven't attended a murder since, and, furthermore, I am absolutely in favor of the sacredness of human life 100 per cent, and I decry this our fair land by raising the sinister specter of a murder committed 15 years ago, without fear of successful contradiction."

"But, listen," the pig yelled. "You liberals and progressives are on record against murder."

"Oh, shut up!" the liberals and progressives hollered. "You are not so hot yourself, and, anyway, it is plain to see that your motives in coming at this time squealing 'murder' are to belittle the issues with a red herring and throw a monkey wrench into the very taproots of human rights as opposed to property rights. We know all about you, and anyway, your conduct is very embarrassing and your presence obnoxious to us, squealing and carrying on that way."

So, do you know what they did? They belittled the pig and ate him all up.

And then they went back to the potato patch and covered up the evidence of the murder and decided to just let it lie and forget about it.

You May Keep a Lone Wolf On a Chain, But It Wasn't Born To Be Domesticated

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Many earnest citizens are alarmed by the "divorce evil," which has changed marriage from a contract to an experiment, but nobody has yet suggested the obvious means of ending it.

For ages the world has known that men must reap what they sow, and also that pain can be ended only by removing the cause, and here is all the equipment needed to end divorce.

Marriage has always been a gamble. All through the Christian era, until our time, it was regarded as a sacred and permanent contract, to be dissolved only by death, but it was the power of the church and not universal success in gambling that made it so. The unhappily married endured their misery for their souls' sake, even though they sought consolation away from home.

Since the church has lost much of its power, and people feel free to end a partnership that proves unendurable, the only way to prevent divorce is to prevent the kind of marriage that has little or no chance to succeed.

This doesn't refer to the divorces that result from trivial quarrels, hurt feelings and stubborn pride. These are childish and silly and could and should be prevented simply by not allowing them. Legal contracts made by adults cannot be annulled by a fit of pouting.

For the general good and the stability of society and the protection of children, those who wish to marry should be required to prove their fitness.

The first consideration, of course, should be soundness of mind and freedom from hereditary disease.

Children should not be permitted to marry, for their tastes have not matured and each may develop a marrow-deep aversion for the kind of person the other becomes.

But a far greater danger, because it is unsuspected, is the natural unfitness for marriage that dooms many adults who seem wholly normal.

Nobody marries in the expectation of being dissatisfied or the fear of being cheated. They all think they know what they are getting. Nobody strives and schemes to get a gem if he knows it is a fake.

Yet many marriages are doomed from the beginning because a small percentage of men and a large percentage of women are physically and therefore mentally and temperamentally unfit for marriage. They are natural old maids, whether male or female, and, in Mark Twain's indelicate phrase, have no more sex than a tapeworm.

These may be the most upright and useful citizens, and the nicest of people, but they simply aren't qualified for marriage. And divorce lawyers will thrive so long as these are permitted blindly and innocently to undertake a role for which they have no capacity.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Visions of glory, spare my aching sight;

Ye unborn ages, crowd not on my soul."

They crowd mightily upon the soul of Thornton Jacobs, thoughtful and romantic president of Oglethorpe University in Atlanta. Aching to assure them a sight of his own age's glories, he is preparing a granite crypt in which to be sealed "every essential fact relating to our life of today" and which is not to be opened until the year 8113. But how can he be sure his directions will be followed? When packages arrive early in December labeled "not to be opened until Christmas" the injunction is easy to obey because the recipient knows he will still be on hand when the day for the opening arrives. But what gives us concern for Dr. Jacobs' crypt is that certain generations to come, knowing they themselves will be gone before the year set for the great opening, may refuse to abide by the injunction. Curiosity may overcome them.

Along about 8013, for example, if we happened to be the custodian of the Jacobs' crypt or the governor of the south (there won't be any states then, merely regions) we would be rather likely to peep or to use our gubernatorial power to have the opening day advanced a brief 100 years so we could see the contents ourselves. Human nature and curiosity being what they are there might even be efforts to fudge on Dr. Jacobs' opening date as early as 2013. It seems to us that he must have some sort of assurance as to when the crypt will actually be opened, because the things he would want to put in it if it were going to be opened 100 years hence would be very different from those he would choose if the opening were not to be for 6,000 years.

One of the most interesting features of this finely imaginative proposal, therefore, in our opinion, is the time lock or other arrangement with which Dr. Jacobs proposes to make sure his precious package will "not be opened until Christmas."

Herbert Hoover won't say he won't accept the Republican nomination in 1940 if it is forced upon him. Being human, he would like nothing better than the vindication of a return to the White House after all the abuse he has had. In his favor even Democrats may admit that he is probably the ablest and best informed man in the Republican party and that much of the criticism poured upon him would have been poured upon any other man who happened to be president when the depression came.

As Walter Lippmann once pointed out, it was Hoover, not Roosevelt, who began this business of having the federal government assume responsibility for the economic well being of the American people. Roosevelt merely amplified the responsibility and raised the ante.

In a democracy a thing once given the people cannot be taken away without political damnation for the taker-awayer. That is why the precedent Hoover had been rejected he would have gone in for just about as much controlling of production and prices and wages and as much social security legislation as Roosevelt has, done it with less elan, no doubt, but, if permitted, with more efficiency. He would probably have gone in for even more, as he is naturally more attracted to planned economy than Roosevelt is. To this day Mr. Roosevelt has not decided, it would seem, whether he is for planned economy all the time or for it only as an emergency measure, preferring the alternative of unimpeded competition for the long pull.

The real issue, as this column sees it, is between this planned economy and unimpeded competition. We hope it will be coherent in the next presidential campaign in order that we may vote for the candidate who is for unimpeded competition.

MANIAC IS SOUGHT IN PAIR'S SLAYING

Police Suspect Vengeance in Probe of Death of Young Sweethearts.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(UP)—The man who murdered a pair of youthful sweethearts and used a lipstick to brand their foreheads with scarlet circles was a maniac who may have had some twisted idea that he was a divinely appointed instrument of vengeance, police said tonight.

All material clues as to why Louis Weiss, 20, and Frances Hajeck, 19, were killed while they sat in a parked car in the lonely woods of Queens—perhaps talking about when they would get married—appeared tonight to be thin, cold and useless. Detectives staked almost everything on the hope that the murderer would make a sensational move that would betray him.

Late today a man was taken to Jamaica police headquarters for questioning. Two months ago this man was arrested for walking naked near the place where the bodies of the boy and girl were found yesterday. Police did not disclose immediately whether he had given them information of value.

A day of questioning among friends of Weiss and Miss Hajeck indicated to detectives that jealousy was not the motive for the crime.

The police theory is that a "bushwhacker" stumbled on the automobile occupied by Miss Hajeck and Weiss, became enraged when he saw them and promptly killed them.

FIERY CROSS BURNS NEAR F. D. R.'S TRAIN

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Oct. 4.—(UP)—A fiery cross blazed tonight near the railroad tracks on which President Roosevelt's train approached St. Paul.

The cross, four or five feet high and set level with an automobile road slightly above the level of the railroad tracks, was burning as the presidential special passed at approximately 1:38 p. m. Atlanta time, trainmen said. The cross was set with the Ku Klux Klan, was planted a few miles west of Long Lake, Minn.

It became known here tonight that two fiery crosses were burned near President Roosevelt's estate at Hyde Park Friday night at the time Justice Hugo Black made his radio address.

homes" had been with him on his trip so they could have a national point of view. He indicated strongly his purpose had been bolstered by his recent travels, saying he found "overwhelming evidence" for the wage-hour bill on his tour between the coasts.

He speculated at Grand Forks that the supreme court might approve proposed new voluntary crop control legislation, although he said he saw little practical difference between it and the old AAA farm contract which the court said was illegal.

Again, he hit the court at St. Paul, when he said the farm and labor bills were intended to replace his "cornerstones" the court had destroyed.

It was there he gave assurance that the labor legislation he has in mind is not intended to restore all the NRA.

"It is intended," he added, "to restore certain fair standards for the workers of the nation."

"It is intended to prevent overlong hours of labor."

"It is intended to establish a reasonable minimum wage and it is intended to end child labor in every state in the Union."

He said it should be realized his farm program was meant to serve both grower and consumer—to keep prices from dropping too much and also to prevent there ever being a shortage of food.

Throughout the day there were signs of friendliness between the President and members of other parties. He was introduced at Grand Forks and Fargo by Governor William Langer, a Republican who holds office with Labor-Nonpartisan League backing.

Langer and Senator Nye, North Dakota Republican, rode with him from Grand Forks to Fargo. Governor Benson, Senator Shipstead and Representative Buckler, all Minnesota Farmer-Laborites, joined the train at Fargo for the ride to St. Paul.

And in the speech here, the President made several references to his friendliness for this constituency. He said: "You, the people of Minnesota, have proved in the past that you favor progress and continued progress in government. You are not wild-eyed radicals. You believe in a constitutional democracy as I do. You understand when I speak in national terms. . . . We have worked toward a common goal in the past and our co-operation is by no means at an end."

This "Black Cat" Brings Luck to Its Owners

For once a Black Cat is a coveted possession. The little glass kitty causes quite a commotion each October among freshmen and sophomore classes at Agnes Scott College. Representatives of these classes stage stunts in efforts to win the "cat" as prize for the most original performance. With the "Charmed One" are Miss Pattie Patterson, of Charlotte, N. C., left, freshman stunt chairman, and Miss Henrietta Thompson, of 434 Callan circle, N. E., sophomore stunt chairman.

Olson Enlisted. In opening his address, he referred to "my old friend Governor Benson" and said he could not come to Minnesota without thinking of "another old friend who has passed on—Floyd Olson, whose memory as a great liberal leader will always be with us."

Olson was a Farmer-Laborite Governor, too. At Willmar, Minn., en route here, the President was welcomed by another large crowd. Speaking from the rear platform, after an echoing cheer, he spoke on how "interesting" his trip has been and how glad he was to find conditions better than last year throughout the west.

RACKETEERS PLAN LOTTERY REOPENING

as—will be opposed by Andrews, and there was every indication last night that even if the motion is insisted upon, it will be denied. "If we are to force attorneys to disclose the names of their clients at the bidding of a grand jury or even the courts, our judicial system and the whole system of Georgia jurisprudence is in serious jeopardy," Hunt said.

"The principle involved in this issue is much larger than the activities of bug operators. If the court insists that an attorney's relations with his client are not confidential, it will strike at the very vitals of our legal system. We should not permit this catastrophe even to catch bug operators."

Appeal Planned. Hunt hinted that if the decision goes against his clients, he will appeal immediately to the Georgia court of appeals by posting an appeal bond, and finally will ask the supreme court of the United States to pass on the issue in the event the lower courts fail to sustain his contentions.

Bentley yesterday said he will never answer the questions as to who employed him to defend alleged bug clients even if "all the courts in the land order it."

Andrews yesterday continued to interview witnesses in the privacy of his office, and indicated that considerable progress had been achieved. Deserion of the small try last week by the big shots was believed to have contributed largely to the mass of new information gathered over the week end by Andrews and his assistants. It was reported that small operators resented the fact that the big shots declined to provide bonds, attorneys and fines for the hirings as had been the long-established practice.

Probe To Continue.

The grand jury yesterday prepared to resume its probe with a vim following the expose of death threats delivered to Morris M. Ewing, foreman, and Fred J. Coolidge Jr., secretary, and the added incentive of the defiance which the resumption of bug activities exhibits.

Although a portion of the morning will be devoted to routine matters while Andrews is pressing his contention that attorneys should be forced to answer grand jury questions, it was said several racket witnesses will be heard by the inquisitorial body during the afternoon.

Further Study. Wednesday and Thursday will be devoted exclusively to further study of evidence already presented and the hearing of about 25 additional witnesses.

Will Holbrook, negro, yesterday drew a fine of $50 for his first offense on a bug count and the 12 months' companion sentence was suspended on payment of the fine. Holbrook was the only bug defendant to face Judge Jesse M. Wood, of the criminal court of Fulton county. There are only 15 other bug cases on the calendar this week as compared to 85 for last week.

Big shot operators apparently believing that the grand jury probe has collapsed without sufficient evidence to provide indictments, which cannot be beaten,

AVIATOR WHISTLES IN FACE OF DEATH

Insurgent Verdict Expected Today, But Franco Has Promised Mercy.

SALAMANCA, Spain, Oct. 4.—(AP)—American Aviator Harold E. Dahl whistled cheerfully and scribbled additional items in his memoirs tonight even though a Spanish insurgent court-martial is expected to decree a death sentence for him tomorrow.

The blond, 28-year-old flyer from Champaign, Ill., was confident he will not be put to death because Insurgent Generalissimo Franco answered supplications of Dahl's wife by saying Insurgent Spain "does not need" his life.

"But I want to get out of here," Dahl said as he glanced about his jail cell. "I did a silly thing. If I escape with a whole skin I'll be damned lucky."

He is charged with bearing arms against Insurgent Spain. In this case it is expected an exchange of prisoners may be effected, however.

Six officers, headed by a colonel, will try the case. In all courts-martial, final papers are reviewed in the higher court at Burgos, seat of the Nationalist government, and then sent to Franco for his signature.

Farley Sees Surplus in Postal Branch

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The nation's No. 1 mailman, James A. Farley, dedicated New York's new $11,000,000 federal office building today and said he was confident his department would show a net postal surplus for the 1937 fiscal year.

Farley said the net deficit of the Postoffice Department was more than $152,000,000 in 1932 and more than $50,000,000 in 1933. In 1934, the first full year under operation of his administration, Farley said there was a net postal surplus of more than $12,000,000. In 1935, he said, this surplus was $5,000,000.

SPRINKLER ALARM CALLS FIRE FIGHTERS TO STORE

Heat early this morning set off the sprinkler alarm system at the Peoples Furniture Company, 74 Forsyth street, S. W., in downtown Atlanta, but firemen found no fire. Firemen found the sprinkler on the second floor working after breaking in a window, and cut it off in the basement. Officials reported no damage and what set the alarm off was not discovered.

TROTSKY'S EX-AIDE KILLED

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Leon Trotsky, exiled Russian leader, asserted tonight he had received word his former secretary, Erwin Wolf, had been executed in Spain, a victim of "Stalinist terror."

Snappy Uniform.

Officer Stribling bought a snappy uniform for Bernard, which was discarded and a new one purchased when the new belted outfits now worn by the officers were adopted.

Every afternoon at 4 o'clock when the evening watch answers roll call, Bernard takes his place in line. He answers "hup" in true police style when his name is called by the captain. From that time on he can be seen on the "beat" with Officer Stribling.

"We have had a big time together," said Bernard. "Mr. Stribling and I would go around and inspect doors and one time he let me work traffic for him. That was something, too, for a street car almost ran over my feet."

"I suppose I will know better next time I go out with Mr. Stribling when he gets out of the hospital. I have already asked the nurse if I can give him a blood transfusion if he needs another one."

Last night at the hospital Officer Blackwell sat outside the room of Officer Stribling and told nurses and internes his plans for "patrol duty" with Mr. Stribling as soon as he was out of the hospital.

Inside the room, Patrolman Stribling lay, ill from an operation. Dangerously ill and a "No Visitors" sign hung on the door, giving emphasis to the condition inside.

JURY PANEL EXHAUSTED IN ADAMS MURDER CASE

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Names of 53 additional veniremen were drawn this afternoon following exhaustion of the first panel of prospective jurors to try Mrs. Maude Adams on a charge of murdering her attorney-husband, Ben S. Adams, July 14, 1936.

Before the opening day of the trial ended, Judge Price denied a defense motion to continue the case a fourth time on the grounds that Mrs. Adams was not physically or mentally able to face trial.

Mellon Scientists Stumped by Paint Of Football Score

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 4.—(AP)—They pouted, they scrubbed and they steamed, but the scientific minds of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research tried in vain today to erase the black-painted score of New York University's 18-14 victory over Carnegie Tech from the building.

Pranksters smeared the white limestone face of the new $8,000,000 research building with six-foot-high letters:

"N. Y. U. 18-C. T. 14."

For more than 20 years the research institute has solved complicated scientific problems for the nation's business. Today Director E. R. Weidlein, of the institute, said:

"We have a real research problem to remove the stain."

"We are a research institute and they have given us a real problem to work on."

If the defaced stone has to be removed, said Police Inspector Deasy, it will cost $25,000.

Police released a man whom

Deasy identified as Angelo Rubbing who said he was a commercial law instructor at New York University.

NORRIS UNDER CARE OF MAYO PHYSICIANS

ROCHESTER, Minn., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, was under the care of Mayo clinic physicians in the Kahler hospital today. His physician said he was here for a medical examination. The senator was not "seriously ill," physicians said.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

"Well, we could wake him, couldn't we?" Peter asked.

It was a nightmare. Gloria wished that she could awaken. "I didn't know you were here; I thought you were in Philadelphia, Peter," she repeated senselessly.

"He was, and he was the sickest man you ever saw in your life!" Ethel supplied readily. "He came down with flu in the house where we've both been boarding."

"I was tired," Peter explained. "I'd been working overtime, and worrying, I guess. Ethel, here, was driving west, and the San Francisco office wrote me, offering me a job." He stopped, putting his hand wearily to his head.

"I've got a very good chance for an engagement in Hollywood," Ethel said. "If you know my name at all you know it on the radio; for three years. Now I'm going to try the films."

Again Gloria only looked at her absently.

"I would have died if it hadn't been for Ethel," Peter said. "Oh, no, you wouldn't." Ethel put in good-naturedly. "All I did was to go in with ice and orange juice now and then, she explained to Gloria. "They don't need much nursing. And then, when I was starting west with this friend of mine—we left her in San Francisco—he just got homesick and had to come along!"

"The girls did all the driving," Peter said smiling. "They babied me all the way."

"We like him!" Ethel admitted significantly, with a smile. She took his hand. "I suppose we can tell Gloria that we like each other?" she asked.

Peter's eyes and Gloria's met, and Gloria in the midst of her bewilderment and uneasiness was conscious of a little feeling of pity for him.

"That won't surprise her much," Peter said.

"Not at all!" Gloria said. She felt a little dazed. There was something unreal about the whole scene; the dusk of the afternoon outside the office windows; Peter's face, so oddly familiar and yet so strange; the presence of this pretty, assured woman, who seemed to have nothing to do with them.

"Oh, poor fellow," she thought, with almost the feeling of a little laugh tingling her pity. "He must have been having a rotten time or he wouldn't have looked at her! He was ill and she nursed him; that's the explanation. He's still as weak as a kitten." "Your head aches doesn't it, Peter?" she said aloud.

"Well, it does, a little. We'll get back to town and I'll get into bed and take it easy for a day or two."

"It's bad to get out too soon after flu," Gloria said mechanically. He looked pale and sick, she thought.

"You'll have to tell me all about running Jimmy," Ethel said.

The words seemed to linger in the air; Gloria felt them fall upon her like a sudden touch of ice. Jimmy? What had she said about Jimmy?

"I don't know much about children," Ethel added.

"But you like them," said Peter quickly.

"Oh, I love them!" Ethel answered. "A friend of mine in New York had a little boy; I adore him. He'll sing any song he hears."

"When would you want us to have him and when do you want him?" Peter asked.

There was sheer panic in Gloria's heart, but she spoke with outward calm; time—she must have time... "Well, that would depend—wouldn't it? I mean, what we do and where you are and what's convenient, and everything. We couldn't possibly settle it today, could we?"

"You'd want him half the time, wouldn't you?" asked Ethel.

"I want him—" Gloria stammered, and Peter said, "Well, of course you would! What Ethel was thinking was that our six months would be better in summer, because she's pretty sure to be in Los Angeles summer, even if she goes to New York for the winters. So it would be better to have him then, because my hours may be queer—radio hours always are."

Gloria looked at him blindly; looked back at the strange woman who was talking possessively of Jimmy, and tried to laugh. "Well, I think we can leave all that until later, can't we?" she managed to say.

"Oh, but I've got to sign contracts, if I'm lucky!" Ethel said cheerfully.

"I'd love to have him—now, any time. I'd take him today if you were willing," Peter suggested. "I never had any trouble managing him, and of course he's older now; he's not so much care."

"It seems to me we ought to look at it this way," Ethel said practically. "You're going to Reno. When? Would you want to take him there or don't you want him to know anything about it? This is what Peter and I were thinking. If we took him along with us—say, in a day or two—why, I'd have a chance to get acquainted with him. I'd see my movie people down south and Peter'd fix it up with his radio contract. Then we'd know where we were and whether we wanted to rent a little apartment down there, or what we wanted to do. Now, how do you feel about that?"

"He wouldn't be the slightest trouble to me!" Peter said eagerly. "But if you'd rather have our time begin in—say, June, why, I can come up and get him. Then I'd bring him back to you in November."

Gloria sat in stunned silence, listening.

In Gloria's frightened heart was the feeling that somehow she had sown the wind and that the whirlwind was roaring about her ears. She had announced certain plans. That others would adopt them, build upon them, had not occurred to her. Matters had been taken out of her hands, but of course, I haven't gone to Reno, yet. And if I do—

"If you do," Peter echoed as she paused.

"But, Peter," she said, terrified, and feeling the weakness of her own words as she spoke, "why do you want him? I mean now, when things are so unsettled and then he's—he's so little!"

"Well, I want him to know that he has a father," Peter offered, troubled.

"He's crazy about him," Ethel put into the pause. "All the time he was out of his head with the flu he talked about Jimmy."

"You don't mind waking him up, do you, Gloria?" Peter asked.

"I'm crazy to see him."

Gloria was conscious only of a determination to fight. Nobody in the world should take away from her the loving, tender, eager little boy who was safe asleep in the crib upstairs.

"I'll go in with you. I won't keep him long," Peter said.

"But, Peter—tomorrow—I'd so much rather—" She couldn't let them sweep her off her feet this way! "We can talk it over," Gloria stammered, fighting for time.

"My own plans are so uncertain in fact, I've no plans really—"

"We seem to be talking at cross-purposes," Ethel said, as Gloria hesitated. "I mean, Peter and I were counting on what you said, that you wanted a divorce and would give the boy up half the time," she added. "That's right, isn't it? I mean, you haven't changed your mind?"

"I don't know that that was ever my mind," Gloria said uneasily. "I don't think he can decide these things offhand. If you'll come over tomorrow, Peter, we can talk it over then."

"But there's nothing offhand about what you wrote Peter!" Ethel said flatly.

"I know," Gloria said icily, "but I wouldn't want to let Jimmy go," she recommended, trying for firmness, "until you were pretty sure that things were all right for him—and for you," she added, as an afterthought.

"But it wouldn't be letting him go," Ethel said briskly, as round, who suddenly looked very tired, was silent. "It'd be just Peter's turn for him, wouldn't it?"

THE NEST OF CATFISH.

Did you ever wonder how catfish happened to have such a name? Probably the name came from the barbels under the fish's "chin." The barbels may remind one of the whiskers of a cat.

By and by, it was found that some of the minnows left in the tank had disappeared. There was no way for them to escape, and the keeper wondered what had happened. After thinking about the matter, he began to suspect the parents.

The full-grown catfish were in the habit of "mouthing" their young. They would catch up the minnows, then blow them free again. This was taken as a form of play, but study proved that some of the minnows never came out again. The parents were eating their own children! In six weeks, all the rest of the fish in the tank were gone.

Why did the parent fish care for the eggs so well, if the young were to be killed?

Out in the world of Nature, young catfish leave the old ones after a short period of protection. In the tank, they stayed around too long. Another reason is that the full-grown fish were not being fed with live minnows while in the tank. The temptation to catch live food was too great for them. (For Nature section of your scrapbook.)

STUDIO OFFICIALS DENY
FREDDIE'S BACK ON JOB

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 4.—(P)—If Freddie Bartholomew, child film star, returned to work today at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, officials of the studio were not they declared, aware of it.

"He wasn't here and there's no picture for the boy," said a studio spokesman.

Previously, William Neblett, attorney for the boy, announced that Freddie returned to his place of employment to continue drawing his $1,100-a-week salary pending an appeal from an injunction prohibiting him from working for any other film concern.

KOSHER 'SIT-DOWN'
CUTS MEAT PRICE

Sharp Break Reduces Cattle $1 a Hundredweight in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(P)—Cattle prices slumped $1 a hundredweight today, one of the sharpest breaks on record and the first real setback the market has had since the uninterrupted rise got under way early last June.

With the strike of Kosher butchers in the east practically eliminating shipping demand from New York, demand for better grade heaves in a fairly large sized run of 22,000 head was at a minimum. Choice and prime steer prices have been rising briskly since the first week in June. The average weekly price of these kinds has advanced more than $5 a hundredweight since that time and now is above $18 compared with $10 a year ago. The recent top of $19.90 per hundredweight was the highest in 18 years.

This upturn in cattle values has been reflected in the wholesale and retail beef markets.

KOSHER MEAT STRIKE HINGES ON CONFERENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(P)—Refusal of more than 3,000 Kosher butcher shops in New York's metropolitan area to handle meat in protest against high prices went through its second day with peace prospects hanging on a conference tomorrow between "strike" leaders and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

The closing of shops in the biggest meat-eating center of the country diverted some supplies which had been headed here to other markets but not enough, packers said, materially to affect the general situation in the nation.

The Federation of Kosher Butchers, which continued the strike today, claimed it supplied 85 per cent of the total Kosher trade in New York city.

Paulette Goddard Still in Running
For Part of Scarlett, Cukor States

Director Says Chaplin's Protege Is 'Unknown' in Sound Films.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(P)—George Cukor, director of the projected film version of Margaret Mitchell's best-seller, "Gone With the Wind," said today Clark Gable is "wanted" for leading man and Paulette Goddard is "being considered" for leading woman.

Clearing the air in regard to two of the most widespread rumors about the production, Cukor said no decision has been reached in the cases of either Gable or Miss Goddard, the film protegee of Charles Chaplin.

David O. Selznick, the producer, and Cukor arrived here to spend two weeks with Sidney Howard, author of the script, "polishing up" that document.

Condensation Needed.

"We expect to go into production next spring and the film version will begin and end as the book does," said Cukor. "But there must be a lot of condensation between those two scenes."

Cukor said he will take a screen test of Miss Goddard when he returns to Hollywood. Then, and not before, he said, it will be decided whether the petite New York-born actress gets the part of the stormy, temperamental, flaming-haired Scarlett O'Hara of Georgia in the Civil War story.

Cukor raised the hopes of hundreds of southern-born girls when he said the part of Scarlett would go to "an unknown," preferably from the south. He interviewed many aspirants here, in southern cities and in Hollywood in recent months.

New Personality.

"If we chose Miss Goddard I don't feel I'm going back on my word because, in a sense, she would be a new personality in a sound film—she has only starred in one silent picture with Chaplin," Cukor explained. He said he rehearsed Miss Goddard three times for the part before leaving Hollywood and that he understood arrangements have been completed to release her temporarily from obligations to Chaplin if she is wanted for the part.

"We are not trying especially to get a Scarlett with a natural southern accent," Cukor said. "In fact we had to give that up when it turned out that most of the so-called southern belles trying out hadn't seen the south since they learned to walk."

He said the part of "Rhett Butler," a man of the world, must go to an experienced star actor and "we want Gable but it is not certain whether he can be released from present contracts."

Five hundred children took their places today in 12 classrooms in the new building.

John L. Rohrer, president of the school board, reported 18 to 20 absentees without cause. Sixteen Amish children in the neighborhood were eligible.

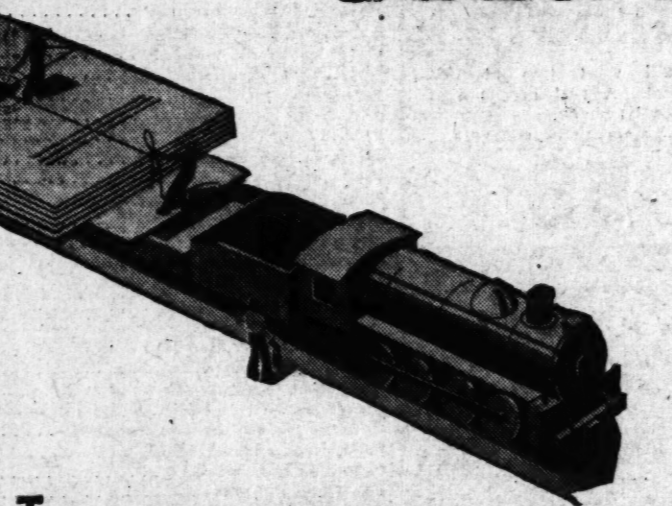

Jonathan Zook, a leader of the "plain people," said they were against indebtedness and furthermore "what was good enough for our fathers is good enough for us."

TAXI OPERATOR HELD IN HARALSON SLAYING

BUCHANAN, Ga., Oct. 4.—A man listed as Snooks Burden, 25, a taxi operator, today was reported held in the Haralson county jail here pending further investigation of the fatal shooting of Lucius Wright, 22, at Bremen Sunday.

Sheriff L. J. White reported Burden said Wright was fatally shot accidentally. The gun, it was said, belonged to Burden, who said he had agreed to lend it to Wright and was handing it to him when the weapon was discharged. The shooting occurred at a filling station where Wright was a night operator.

Funeral services were held for Wright today.

MORE PLAYGROUNDS
ASKED BY ENGINEER

Lack of Parks Seen as Cause of Increase in Jails and Penitentiaries.

Society of the future will need more jails and penitentiaries because today's parks and playgrounds are too few," Frederick R. Storer, city engineer of Dearborn, Mich., told delegates of the forty-third annual conference of the Public Works Congress here yesterday.

"Today we need parks and playgrounds," Storer said. "Why? Because the kids do not have any place to play. Tomorrow we are going to need more jails and penitentiaries because the kids didn't have any place to play today."

More Playgrounds Urged.

Urged public works officials to build adequate playground facilities immediately.

"City planning," he said, "does not mean the city beautiful nearly as much as it means the city practical. By planning today, cities may save the time and expense of corrective planning later."

He referred to overcrowding as being responsible "for a lot of our ills" and said zoning and planning were necessary if cities were to provide proper environments for home owners and industry.

Government Cost Cited.

Taxpayers will continue to face increasing costs of municipal government, Frank W. Herring, executive director of the American Public Works Association, declared.

He referred to increased demand by taxpayers for more and better services. "The so-called city government is the cost of living in a city at cost for services," he added.

The three-day convention was opened yesterday with an address by Mayor Hartsfield and a response by Thomas Buckley, of Philadelphia, president of the association.

GREEN CALLS AFL TO WAR ON LEWIS

stitution of the American Federation of Labor and seize control of several of its affiliated unions. They went even further and directed the activities of these unions along lines which were in open violation of our law.

"But we left the door open for the rebellious unions to return. A committee was appointed and instructed to meet with a similar committee representing the CIO to seek a basis of settlement and accord to avoid the disastrous effects of a civil war in labor ranks."

All our invitations for such a meeting were spurned or ignored. The CIO persisted in its folly. It became bolder. It dropped its disguise and began an open campaign to rip and tear the organized labor movement asunder, it declared war on the American Federation of Labor and set out to wreck the house of labor.

"Today, a new chapter was written in the long struggle. The executive council of the American Federation of Labor in its report to the convention recommended that the convention authorize it to revoke the charters of the CIO unions and expel them from the federation. This procedure is in accordance with our constitution and laws."

"There is no room in this country for two hostile labor organizations. The strength of labor is in unity. When labor is divided it cannot accomplish its fundamental objective of improving the economic and social conditions of the workers. When labor fights itself, it cannot fight for the workers. Workers Must Choose."

"Thus the time is at hand when the American public and the organized workers of America will have to choose between the American Federation of Labor and the American Federation of Labor and the CIO."

"We do not want the American people to say 'a plague on both your houses.' That was the apt quotation used by the President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in describing public reaction to the recent abortive and disastrous strike waged by the CIO against the independent steel industry."

"That curse has never been pronounced against the American Federation of Labor. It never will be. Because the American Federation of Labor, guided throughout its entire history by the rule of reason, is founded upon the same principles of freedom and democracy as the Republic of the United States and its policies are determined by the great mass of American workers."

"The CIO has no conventions. Its members have no voice in determining its policies. It is governed from the top down. It is ruled by edict. It represents dictatorship in labor."

Upholds American Institutions.

The American Federation of Labor upholds the American form of government. It respects private property," Green continued. "It seeks a relationship between labor and management beneficial to both. It has proven its responsibility. It respects contracts. It condones no strikes. It does not resort to strikes until all peaceful methods have failed, and then only after a majority of the workers affected vote to strike. It resists subversive forces. It has been and remains the strongest bulwark in the nation against the invasion of Communism, Fascism or any other foreign 'ism'."

"The American Federation of Labor is not a political organization. Its officers have no personal political ambitions. It has steadfastly maintained a non-partisan political policy. It supports candidates who are friends of labor and opposes those who are against labor's program, irrespective of party."

"The CIO has served notice at its intention to form an independent labor party.

"Its leader has smilingly listened to himself being hailed by supporters at a public gathering as the next president of the United States. It is being used and its members are being used as a nucleus for a political organization designed to bring about that result."

Howard Assailed.

Amid loud applause Green assailed Charles F. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union, for signing a CIO charter for Pacific coast lumbermen. Although Howard's union is in good standing with the AFL, he is CIO secretary.

The tall printer's chief sat in a box at the convention hall. Near the end of his hour-long speech, Green proposed that congress "strengthen" the neutrality laws to promote "that feeling of security which we all should enjoy in a land devoted to the principles and policies of peace."

He also proposed a boycott on Japanese goods if Japan did not stop its "uncivilized, inhuman" tactics in China.

The convention applauded when Dr. T. Z. Koo, secretary of the World Student Christian Federation, asked for a labor boycott on Japanese goods.

"You hold the key to the situation," he said.

China never would win a decisive military victory over Japan, he added, but could prolong the war long enough to drain Japan's treasury, with the help of labor boycotts.

The Federation delayed seating Howard, CIO secretary, as a delegate today because of a protest by the carpenters' union.

LEWIS HITS BACK
AFTER GREEN ATTACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(UP)—With his Committee for Industrial Organization under heavy fire at the American Federation of Labor convention in Denver, John L. Lewis struck back tonight with the statement that it "will behoove the AFL or corporations to attempt to thwart 'the moral and legal right' of workers to determine the character of their union affiliation."

Lewis was the principal speaker at the first annual convention of the Transport Workers Union, a CIO affiliate, in Madison Square Garden. Some 15,000 persons cheered him for five minutes when he was introduced as "labor's champion."

CONNECTICUT VOTE
GOING DEMOCRATIC

Party Making Heavy Inroads as Municipalities Name Officials.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—(P)—Democrats, picking up where they left off last November, appeared to be making heavy inroads in the Republican column tonight on the basis of incomplete returns from small town elections.

Torrington, one of the three cities which elected municipal officers, went Democratic in a city election for the first time in its history. Norwalk increased its Democratic plurality, while Bristol remained Republican.

Nearly 150 of the state's 169 towns voted today for municipal officers in the first general election since November when Democrats swept Connecticut, once a Republican stronghold, by 100,000 votes.

William A. Patten, Democrat, of Torrington, defeated Mayor Ernest E. Novey, Republican, by more than 500 votes.

The bulk of the rural towns, backbone of the Republican strength, remained in the GOP ranks.

Frank Hawks, speed flyer, was elected to the board of education in his home town of Redding, leading all of his Republican colleagues.

Social Gaieties and Wedding Lure Laura Maddox to Capital

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Laura Maddox reaches the national capital today to visit Ethel Worthington she will add luster to the social gaieties planned for her by her former schoolmate at Finch school. Laura's visit to Washington will be climaxed by attending the marriage of another Finch classmate, Margaret Matheson, who becomes the bride of Fairfax Randolph on Saturday afternoon at Wellington, the Matheson estate on Mount Vernon Memorial highway in Alexandria, Washington's nearest Virginia suburb.

In order to accept Ethel's invitation for this week and to attend the Matheson-Randolph wedding, Laura was compelled to forego attending the 'Veiled Prophets' ball in St. Louis, which is an annual event, as well as being the most important social function given each year in the Missouri city. Laura was invited to visit her cousin, Eunice Holderness, who is one of St. Louis' lovely belles, and who came here for Laura's debut party last winter.

Laura will join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, early next week in Boston, where her father will attend a convention of the American bankers. In addition to attending the social affairs arranged for the bankers in connection with the sessions, Laura will be feted by Virginia Phelan, with whom she traveled on a cruise to the North Cape, and who visited Clare Haverly here last winter when Clare was introduced formally to society.

Laura's visit to the city where the historical tea party took place will be followed by a few days' stay in New York. She and her parents will attend the premiere of the fall's leading theatrical productions as well as being wined and dined by their host of friends in the metropolis.

AN ATLANTA debutante answered the telephone several days ago and was invited to a dinner party by the person on the other end of the wire. She sorrowfully regretted, turned away from the phone, and told her mother that she certainly had wanted to go as a lot of her friends were invited, but that, since she didn't know the person who phoned, she just knew there was some mistake and she was not supposed to have been invited. She had completely forgotten that she was a debutante and that debutantes are invited most places by people they don't know!

CHARLOTTE SAGE, that attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Y. Sage, is leaving town on Thursday with her mother and brother, Dan, for a delightful trip of several weeks through the east. Holding first place on her calendar of dances and football games will be the dance at the University of Virginia the Friday after she leaves Atlanta.

Next Saturday, Charlotte will be at Annapolis to attend the Navy-Virginia game, the tea-dance following the game, and one of those ever-to-be-looked-forward-to Annapolis hops that evening. From here, this charming trio will go to New York, where they will spend a gay week before going to Boston the next Saturday. In Boston, Charlotte will spend a few days as the guest of her former King-Smith school-room mate, Lee Chamberlain, and while there will see the Georgia-Holy Cross game. The following week end, Charlotte will visit Jean Donavin, another former King-Smith classmate, before joining Dan and Mrs. Sage in New York to return home the end of the month. However, she is considering staying in New York to study interior decorating, in which case she will be away for about six weeks.

5th District Group To Meet Thursday.

Mrs. Eustace A. Allen, president of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Fifth District Medical Society, announces that the fall meeting of the group will take place Thursday evening at the Academy of Medicine on Prescott street. A buffet supper will be served at 6 o'clock to the members of the Fifth District Medical Society, assembling for their semi-annual scientific meeting at the same time. A program and talks by out-of-town guests will follow.

Brookhaven Garden Club Flower Show.

The Brookhaven Garden Club sponsored a community flower show recently in the auditorium of the Brookhaven school. Rules and classifications of entries were in charge of Mrs. Z. W. Jones and Mrs. C. H. Peek, exhibit chairmen. The accredited judges were Mrs. R. H. Johns and Mrs. Raymond Sneed for the individual exhibits. Mrs. S. H. Dillard won the sweepstakes, with Miss Estelle Lindsey, runner-up. The judges were assisted by Mrs. Dillard with the class exhibits of the school, which were judged for horticultural achievement. The sixth grade won the sweepstakes for the school, Miss Martha Ayers, teacher. The school also had a colorful exhibit of Mexico, using cactus, grasses, peppers and other material suitable for that country.

Nursing Staff.

Mrs. Abbie R. Weaver, director of Public Health Nursing Service for Georgia, entertained the advisory nursing staff and office staff at a picnic supper recently at her country home, Ridgeleigh Downs, near Smyrna. Present were Misses Jane Van de Vrede, Lillian Zuber, Elsie Crosby, Clara Barrett, Annie Taylor, Margaret Giles, Gertrude Shepard, Caroline Tillinghast, Medama Edwina Hodges, Alma Carlton, Beulah Daniel, Maud Fleming, Virginia Hawkins, Miss Marjorie Ward, Rosa Anderson, Mrs. Leslie Cather, Misses Bruce Hellams, Valeria Shell, Mary Crosby, Lee Keller, Clara Anshover, Elizabeth Fulcher, Mrs. Margaret Faith, Mrs. Edith Thomas and Miss Lena May Jones.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday.—I landed in Newark Friday night after a very comfortable trip across the continent, though I must say all night and most of the day on a plane makes you feel rather pleased to reach home and a real bed for the night.

When we got off at Salt Lake City at 4:50 a. m., I was greeted, as usual, by cameras with flashing bulbs and had a horrible feeling that my hair was untidy and that I looked sleepy. When we reached Denver at 8 o'clock, the ever-present cameras were still on hand and I felt even more queasy as to what those pictures would look like. However, I had a chance to wash my face and tidy up before we started again.

After we had been in the air a short time, the man who was sitting just ahead of me, turned around and said: "This is my first flight and I'm 74 years old, but it isn't going to be my last." I liked that spirit and so we held conversation together. He told me his home was Warren, Pa., and that he had a son growing potatoes in one of the valleys of the southwest and had been out spending a month with him.

The month had been full of thrills. Taos and the Indians in their pueblos, Santa Fe, and a wedding he had seen in the patio of a very interesting inn there, stood out as high lights of his trip. Now, finally, there was this return journey by air. He thought he was traveling alone, but when he got on board his son came in with him and sat down in the seat across the aisle. The door closed and he said: "You better get off, son." Only then did he discover his boy was going on to Chicago with him, where another son would meet him.

As we passed over Omaha the clouds, which for a time had hidden the ground, lifted, and he said: "I am so glad I can see the city, for I have a daughter working here in a hospital and she knows I am coming over this morning." I hope when I am 74 I will be as keen about new experiences and get as much out of life as my friend of this trip.

In Chicago, Mayris Chaney joined me, which made the last part of the flight seem short. At Newark, to my surprise, my brother met me, so I had a real welcome back to the east. It is hard to believe I arrived at Hyde Park yesterday and am spending a quiet day here when I only left my husband and our little Seattle family Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. I gather their trip has progressed successfully since then.

Each time I fly across the continent I am more grateful for this new method of transportation which makes it possible to feel that your children, who settle far away from home, are within reach at 24 hours' notice. I thought I would have an opportunity to take a sleeper plane on this trip, but that is still an experience I must wait to try out at some future time.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

ONCE IN FIVE YEARS.

Newspaper clippings of items dealing with rabies, anonymously sent me from time to time, add to the conviction that rabies is a racket.

One item from a midwest rural town says the county footed a "rabies outbreak" bill of $4,410.70 for the year, comprising payment for treatment of 135 cases—cases of what, one can only infer from the context. The item says there was one fatality from rabies infection, and "the ensuing panic resulting from this death caused a great amount of expense. Not many of the 135 were actually bitten, but were treated because of . . . well, to make a tall story short, because of panic. But that $4,410.70 is only a drop in the bucket. Generally the people themselves pay for Pasteur treatment—unless they are paupers and seek at public expense. The physicians in the community generally charge $50 for Pasteur treatment, the item says. So if 100 of the 135 victims of panic were treated by their own physicians, that would jump the cost immediately an additional $5,000.

Another interesting item in the present collection of clippings is taken from an eastern paper. It is merely a notice like this (fictitious names substituted for names given in item).

Al Beit's swing orchestra 7:15 . . . Frantic search of Ohio's State Police for Earnest Wareham after he had been bitten by mad dog will be dramatized at 7:30 p. m.—WKZ.

No better way to propagate panic than by dramatizing the myth over the radio. It inoculates children and childminded adults even more successfully than does the printing of ugly superstitions. One enthusiastic but inexperienced young health officer (of a W. Va. county), reproving me for my teachings, candidly explained "In W. Va. we have a hard time getting our local appropriations sometimes . . . I have never had a serious situation in regard to rabies but I have used other epidemics to dramatize our work. I will probably always do so." Always, of course, meaning for the health director's term of office, which generally depends on the whim of the politician who happens to have control of things.

A third item is taken from an Oklahoma paper. Scarehead says "Neglected Dog-Bite Kills Girl." Item says ten-year-old girl complained on a Monday that she was not feeling well, but as it was four weeks since her pet Spitz had inflicted a slight wound over her left eye, no attention was paid to her complaint. Thursday night she said her neck hurt and she felt faint and nervous . . . A doctor saw her admitted to a hospital at 2 a. m., but the child died an hour later. She died from rabies, the newspaper item implies. The Lord knows what the child died of, certainly no physician can tell positively and no pathologist can determine whether an illness or death is caused by rabies, for the simple reason that there is no known specific test. In my opinion the indications in at least some such cases point rather to strychnine poisoning or to tetanus (lockjaw). This child's older brother was bitten on the foot by the same dog the same day, but he immediately applied tincture of iodine to his scratch or wound and suffered no ill effects, the news item says. It was the "first rabies death in five years." Shucks, maybe it was the first in five hundred years.

Auburn and Tulane Battle to Scoreless Tie on Slippery Field

Scout Robert E. Lee Dodd was first in the office out at Georgia Tech yesterday.

"You ought to see Duke," he said. "What a team! Better than last year."

"They must miss Parker."

"Miss Parker? They've got a fellow that is making them forget Parker. Fellow is named Eric Tipton. Comes from up in Virginia somewhere. He kicks a lot better than Parker. I'm not fooling. He does."

"A better team and a better kicker than Parker?"

"That's right. They could have defeated Davidson more than they did. Their offense definitely is better than the one of last year."

Mr. Alexander, the head coach, sat listening, his face betraying no emotion at all.

Mr. Roy McArthur, who had scouted Kentucky, was standing by, waiting to break in.

"Kentucky looked great in the last quarter," he said. "They have improved. Coleman is a great passer. He's dangerous. And when they let this Bob Davis run, he can really pick them up and put them down. I wouldn't offer to say what might happen up there next week."

DUTCH KONEMANN.

"Best football player I've seen in a long time," interrupted Bobby Dodd, "is a fellow named Keen Lafferty on this Davidson team. He does everything. He's the best broken-field runner I've seen in years."

"Stop right there," said Mr. Alexander. "That's the first bit of good news you've brought back. We don't play Davidson. We play Kentucky Saturday and Duke the week after. We'll stop with Lafferty of Davidson."

And we did. But one does wonder where Wallace Wade gets all those kickers? To come back with a better kicker than Ace Parker is something else. Quite a feat, so to speak.

QUARTERBACK KONEMANN.

Mr. William Alexander is sure of just one thing about the Georgia Tech-Kentucky game on next Saturday at Lexington, up there in the blue grass country.

Dutch Konemann will not call signals.

He never has, you say?

That's what we all thought. That is, until yesterday. Mr. Alexander smilingly reported that when Konemann went back into the Tech lineup Saturday in the last minutes of the fourth quarter, Konemann was acting captain and calling signals.

"He was awful," said Mr. Alexander, smiling. "Why, the big loafer just stood around and kidded with the Mercer team and had a fine time. He wouldn't call himself to run with the ball and he let others do the blocking and the tackling."

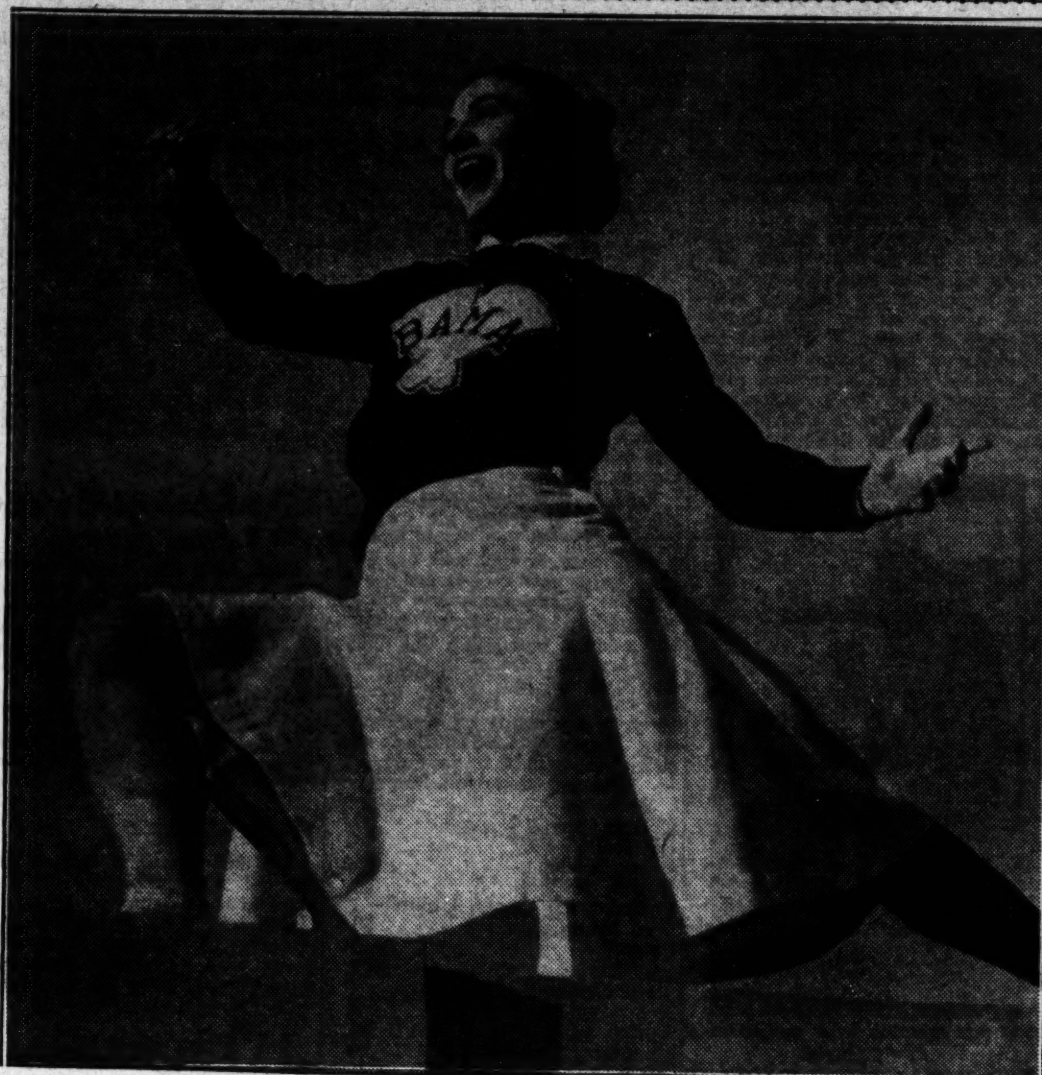

Once, the Dutchman found himself handling a lateral. He got to the five-yard line. It is doubtful if the Mercers would have stopped him had he thundered on. He stopped and looked around and finally saw Davey Crockett. He flipped Crockett the ball and that young man was stopped at the two-yard line. A minute later and a holding penalty set Tech back.

"I did it just for fun," said Alex. "And Dutch had a fine time and we all had a laugh. As a signal caller he is a fine hog caller."

"My dogs were hurting," said Konemann. "I let the other

Plainsmen and Wave Play to Tie in Mud

Tigers Halt Greenies on 2-Yard Stripe; Auburn Tries Two Field Goals.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Auburn and Tulane suffered Southeastern conference championship blemishes today when they battled to a scoreless tie on heavy turf in a game postponed from last Saturday.

Two days ago the playing field was under three feet of water and while the flood had been pumped away and the gridiron had had the benefit of a day of hot sunshine, the going was so treacherous neither team could get a sustained scoring drive going.

Twice the Auburn Plainsmen threatened with attempted field goals and once the Tulane Greenies worked the ball from midfield to two yards from pay dirt only to see the Auburn team put on a gallant goal line stand that turned back their heavier foes.

In the fourth period Tulane got the ball at midfield after one of a series of poor Auburn punts had taken a crazy header out of bounds. There was a pass from Warren Brunner, Tulane's star halfback, to Pete Delavio, end, was good for 30 yards and was the most spectacular play of the game.

Honest John Andrews, Tulane fullback, and Brunner alternated in bucking the ball to Auburn's two-yard line. That was the farthest penetration of the day and there Auburn stopped all the drive the Green Wave could throw into a fierce scoring effort.

Auburn fired her two failing scoring shots in the third period, in which play consistently in Tulane territory. The Plainsmen worked the ball down to the Wave's 20-yard line, where the big Tulane line held. Bo Russell, 199-pound tackle, pulled back to his 30-yard line and booted the ball at the crossbar. It hit an upright and skidded wide.

A little later, Garth Thorpe, substitute guard, fired another field goal try but it was from a bad angle 32 yards out and it fell short. Just as the game was about to end, Billy Payne, substitute halfback for Tulane, took a futile shot at three points but his try at a field goal never got off the ground.

For the most part neither team could find sufficient footing for satisfactory football and punts were almost as numerous as were the substitutions.

Tulane outscored Auburn tremendously so far as the statistics were concerned. The Wave got 177 net yards running against Auburn's 58, and 42 yards on forward passes against the Plainsmen's nine. Tulane got eight first downs against Auburn's only one.

The lineups:
AUBURN: Pos. L.E. Goodell, L.T. Kirchem, C. Buckner, S. Smith, G. C. Miller, R.G. Hall, R.E. Wenzel, R.B. Wenzel, L.H.B. Flowers, F.B. Mattie, F.B. Andrews.
Score by periods:
Tulane 0 0 0 0-0
Substitutions: Tulane, Krueger, Brunner, Dalley, Upton, Sauer, Gorman, Friederich, Delavio, Goll, Wenzel, Dirmann, Foyrie, McArthur, O'Gwynne, Kenners, Burns, Nichols, Howell, Whitley, Wolff, Sitz, Morgan, McKissick, Davis, Bagby, Therpe, Haynesworth, Fowler, Bulger, Kelly, Nims.

Newark Defeats Columbus, 1 to 0

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Newark shut out Columbus, 1 to 0, tonight behind the three-hit pitching of Atley Donald to battle its way back into the fight for the little World Series championship. It was the second straight win for the Bears, after losing the first three to Columbus at Newark.

Gehrig Runs String To 1,965 Straight

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The schedule called for only 154 games but the New York Yankees played 157 with the result "Iron Man" Lou Gehrig ran his string of consecutive games to 1,965.

Two tie games and a disputed contest with the Cleveland Indians gave Gehrig a chance to play the three extra games. The Yanks and Browns finished all-square at 8-8 on June 13. Washington played a 5-5 tie with the American league champions on July 11.

Martha Witt Burleson, of Hartselle, Ala., leads the cheers at the University of Alabama. When foreign teams invade Tuscaloosa, she exhorts the fans to give their all for 'Bama. This is a pretty strenuous rash position and, coupled with other strenuous antics, brings on the result shown at the right. A bit of liniment is needed after the game. Girl cheer leaders do not have trainers like the football players do, which may be a disappointment to some of you fellows, but there's nothing that can be done about it.

Page Takes Medal In Women's National

Greensboro Entry Takes 2d Straight Honor With 79; Dot Kirby Has 87,

By KENNETH GREGORY,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, who learned the fine points of a very sound game of golf without the aid of a professional, stroked Old Man Par to a standstill today to become medalist of the Women's National Golf tournament for the second straight year.

In the only par equalling exhibition of the 18-hole qualifying test to determine the 64 places allotted to championship match play starting tomorrow, Mrs. Page, wife of a university professor, matched the 79 card for the Memphis Country Club course.

Those posting 92 qualified for the tournament and one of three players scoring 93 made the grade in a play-off for the remaining place.

SHARPSHOOTER. The long driving and accurate sharpshooter from Greensboro, N. C., played almost perfect golf. She fired an outgoing par 39 and an incoming 40. On each nine she had one bogey and one birdie. On most of the long holes she reached the green in two blows.

Mrs. Page, a powerfully built veteran who gets tremendous distance with healthy wallops, outdistanced the field by three strokes in what observers said was one of the highest scoring rounds in several years, undoubtedly due to the soggy battleground.

Poor Putting Worries Dot

By DOROTHY KIRBY.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 4.—For the second consecutive time, Mrs. Page has won the low qualifying medal. She won it last year at Canoe Brook with a 78 and shot a 79 to take it again this time. That 79 was an excellent score, for the tee markers were on the back of the tees. Then, too, the ground was wet.

I can't believe it, but I got in with an 87. I was doing very well until I got on the fourth hole, which is a short one. I thought a seven iron would make it, but the ball fell short by a long way and I wound up in a trap right in front of the green. The ball was practically buried, so I played around with it for a while and managed to come out with a six, and a whacked up ball. This hurt my score on the first nine. On the back nine my putting was poor.

All of the scores ran rather high. Patty Berg had an 82, while Glenna Collett Vare had an 88. Maureen Orcutt finished with an 89. The southern girls did all right on their home territory, with Mrs. Page winning the medal. Kathryn Hemphill was among the first with an 83 and Mrs. Dan Chandler, from Texas, was also in the low eighties. Even though the course was rather hard today, it's a cinch it can't be any worse. The usual thing is to have the course not so Surviving her husband and five daughters, Mrs. J. T. Dowling, of Bemis, Mrs. E. Dasher, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Mrs. Roy Copeland and Mrs. Ben Wisenbaker, both of Miami, and one son, Mack E. Dowling, of Miami.

Funeral services were held at Dasher Station today.

SOUTH CAROLINA GIRL KILLED NEAR AUGUSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Miss Myrtle Muns, 17, of Ellenton, S. C., was killed in an automobile accident on a South Carolina road near here late yesterday. Three Augustans riding in the same car were slightly injured.

THREE ARE RESCUED FROM BURNING AUTO

MACON, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Three Thompson residents were rescued from a flaming automobile near here by passing motorists.

The three, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fitts and Miss Jackie Self, were trapped when the automobile overturned. They were treated at a Macon hospital for minor injuries.

REYNOLDS ELECTED MOULTRIE'S MAYOR

Victor and Vanquished Are 'Still Friends.'

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Evans Reynolds won the post of mayor today and an advertisement says he and his opponent, H. G. Ray, still are friends.

Reynolds received 653 votes to Ray's 494, but before the voting they published statements saying "We desire this race to be conducted in such a way as to cast no reflection on anyone. We, as opponents, are of the opinion that friends and expect to remain such regardless of who wins."

J. Strickland and W. B. Withers were elected councilmen. Wiley Belving, seeking re-election to the council, was four votes behind Withers.

Harry Harper, F. R. Piddock, E. P. Thompson, W. F. McCall, Cliff Jenkins and J. W. Coleman went on the school board unopposed.

The unofficial tally in the council race was: Strickland 440; Withers, 424; Belving, 420; G. J. Austin, 350; Walton Pope, 320; Wiley Fletcher, 265.

MAINE SAYS 'NO'

3 Other Sections Approve Potato Program.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Maine, which refused to endorse the New Deal in last year's election, stood out today against an administration farm program.

While potato farmers in three other areas were voting overwhelmingly in favor of a federal marketing program for the 1937 crop, a majority of Maine growers turned it down. The Maine vote was 660 to 516.

Incomplete returns showed that the three sections favored the marketing program by more than three to one. This authorized Secretary Wallace to issue orders making the proposed marketing agreement binding in areas which approved the program. No orders may be issued in Maine.

The agreements were approved in Idaho, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Red River valley of North Dakota, Colorado, Nebraska and Wyoming.

PRISONER ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE IN CELL

MACON, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Thomas McCombs, Macon jailer, today reported Charles Muse Jr., awaiting sentence on a federal charge, was found hanging in his cell here, but was revived.

McCombs said Muse was found by another prisoner, suspended from the top bars of his cell by a pair of trousers formed in a noose. Muse was revived after about 15 minutes of artificial respiration, McCombs said.

The jailer said Muse attempted to escape July 26 by threatening him with a pistol.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT, TEACHER, 23, MAY DIE

HARRISON, Ga., Oct. 4.—Miss Virginia Price, 23, school teacher, was reported to have died today of wounds sustained when she was shot in the back in her classroom and was discharged.

The bullet struck Miss Price in the back and penetrated her stomach, it was said. Physicians gave her little chance to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Price, her parents, with whom she lives, said she fell as Miss Price reached a dress hanging on the rack.

Burning of Girl With a Flatiron SENDS WHEAT DOWN

Early Upturns Fail To Hold Despite Unfavorable Crop Reports.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Seven-year-old Betty Seavey, agonized by whip welts, flatiron burns and bruises, was reported hysterical in a Bath hospital today, while nearby, in municipal court her mother and stepfather, accused of beating her, protested her innocence.

Judge Dunton held Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wheeler in $2,000 bonds charged of assault and battery, on which they pleaded innocent when arraigned Friday.

The hearing scheduled for today was postponed to permit Betty to testify.

Acting City Marshal Green said besides a fresh flatiron imprint on the child's back, there were two healed prints of a similar nature.

The Wheelers said the burns were self-inflicted.

They were taken from her home last Friday to the home of a neighbor. Police took her to a hospital.

WINKING AT LAWS SCORED BY SEARCY

State Setting Example for Disrespect, He Says.

GRiffin, Ga., Oct. 4.—The state of Georgia today was accused of setting an example of disrespect to law and order, after he cited disregard to highway patrolmen in Judge Searcy's statement was made as he charged the Spalding county grand jury.

Judge Searcy said further: "Certain senators and representatives have advocated passing laws permitting counties that to sell liquor in the state referendum which three-fourths of the counties in the state voted to sustain."

Judge Searcy declared the only purpose of this proposed legislation was to raise additional money to finance the most wasteful and extravagant administration Georgia has ever had in my memory."

He said the state leads the way in winking at state laws, he asserted, "then every citizen has an equal right to wink at what laws he dislikes and wink at them, too."

BISHOP INSISTS ON MAJOR TOPICS

Episcopal Prelate Discounts Marriage Canon Talk.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, expressed the belief tonight that the Protestant Episcopal general convention opening in Cincinnati Wednesday was more important things to do than liberalization of the church marriage and divorce laws.

Discussing a move to reconsider Canon No. 41, which prohibits Episcopal clergymen from marrying divorced persons unless they are innocent parties in cases involving statutory charges, Bishop Freeman said in a statement that questions concerning a minority of the church's constituents should be superseded by "major pressing issues."

EPISCOPALIANS GATHER FOR TRIENNIAL SESSIONS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The church moved in today, pitched camp and began "maneuvers" in a church's fifty-second triennial meeting.

Thousands of others, both clerical and lay delegates, established themselves for the two-week convention, which opens Wednesday with a gigantic open-air service.

"Army" is the official name of a church organization of young men, which serves approximately 200,000 States. But instead of rifles, soldiers wield tools and farm implements.

5 HOODED MEN SEIZE, LYNCH NEGRO PRISONER

MILTON, Fla., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Five hooded men, halting Sheriff Joe Allen, of Santa Rosa county on a midnight drive, seized a negro prisoner and shot him to death on the highway.

The negro, 30-year-old J. C. Evans, was charged with a "crime against nature" involving an attack on a 12-year-old white boy, and with robbing a filling station. He was being brought here for trial today. It was Florida's eighth this year.

FORT LEE, N. J., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Joseph Lofaro, 41, Fort Lee, delegate of the Hod Carriers and Laborers' Union, Englewood, was shot twice tonight about 300 feet from his home.

Taken to Englewood hospital, his condition was listed as "serious."

Police Chief McDermott said he was holding a man booked as Frank Faragomini, 49, of Brooklyn, N. Y., on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

McDermott said he had evidence that the shooting resulted from a labor dispute.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Sentences today on 106 persons arrested in yesterday's bloody rioting between Fascists and anti-Fascists when Sir Oswald Mosley's Blackshirts paraded through southeast London.

Demonstrators, said to number close to 100,000 battled police to prevent 7,000 Fascists from parading through streets from Westminster to Bermondsey.

Market Outlook COTTON PRICES DIP UNDER HEIGE SALES

By MAX BUCKINGHAM, (Copyright, 1937, by United Press) NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(UP)—

Steel is one of the major concerns of the stock market today and reduced production is accentuating the caution toward new commitments.

The American Iron & Steel Institute reported this week's operating schedule of the industry at 66.1 per cent of capacity, a decline of 8.3 points from the previous week. It is the lowest operating schedule since April 6, 1936.

Behind this reduction of output is the fact that demands for heavy steel are diminishing. Mill backlogs have been eased to a great extent. Railroads, faced with higher operating costs, are not buying construction industry is failing to show any considerable pickup. In addition, motor makers are cautious in their requirements for public reaction to higher prices before stepping up production too greatly.

This resulted in the market again selling off. The opening was at the dullest pace since August 31 when prices fairly steady. Dullness continued through the first three hours with prices fairly steady and then with prices fairly figures were announced. United States Steel broke more than 2 points and the remainder of the pressure was without effect. There was no resistance. Closing figures were 1 to 3 points lower and only 630,000 shares were traded.

In addition to the unsatisfactory steel figures there were other factors which created uncertainty in the street. These included:

1. The fact that settlement of the railroad wage difficulties did not bring buying into carriers. While the settlement means additional operating expense to be absorbed by the carriers, the increased pay was a little less than had been expected. But traders continued to shun the carrier shares.

2. The hint by President Roosevelt of a possible special session of congress this fall, some of the matters likely to come before such a session are of the type which worries the Street.

The tendency to overemphasize financial factors. The spiritual situation of deficit financing has worried the Street and whether additional "pump priming" would have the effect it did in past years.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT

No. 86

When, near dusk, the procession reached the border, Tarzan announced that he would go on to visit some chiefs in the west. "In a few days I shall return, and I shall punish any of you who has done evil," he glanced significantly at Spike and Troll.

Tarzan gave the great diamond to van Eyk, to be handed to the Kaji couriers next day. And to Stanley Wood he gave the giant emerald in trust for Gonsale. Then, after he had directed the party in making camp, he vanished into the thick jungle night.

The exhausted fugitives retired to rest from their weary march and to gather strength for the next day's journey; but there were some who did not sleep. Wood, for example, was thinking of Gonsale, and his thoughts were alternately happy and melancholy.

He was enraptured when he recalled that for the past 24 hours she had been so sweet, so gentle; but at any time, he knew, she might burst into one of her fiendish rages. Stanley Wood sighed. By marrying her, he would be inviting a life of torment.

'Inside Dope' on Lightning Pranks Told Electrical Engineers Here

Don't Stand Under a Tree During Storm, Expert Warns, Describing Vagaries of Bolts to American Institute's Session.

The shortest distance between two points may be a straight line, but lightning follows the line of least resistance, so Karl B. McEachron, chief of the General Electric "lightning laboratory" in Pittsfield, Mass., indicated here last night.

Mr. McEachron was in Atlanta to give the "inside dope" about lightning to electrical engineers attending a joint meeting of the Atlanta section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Affiliated Technical Societies.

Since Benjamin Franklin first flew his famous kite one stormy afternoon people have been talking about lightning, but nobody has ever done very much about it, that is, not until recently.

What Has Been Done.

It's Mr. McEachron's business to do something about lightning and with the use of slides he showed the engineers just what has been done in the "lightning laboratory," where they think nothing of producing a 10,000,000-volt discharge of artificial lightning just to see the effects on different materials.

Whenever an apparently unexplainable "prank of lightning" occurs, Mr. McEachron steps in with the assistance of various machines reconstructs just what has happened.

Illustrating with slides the so-called "pranks of lightning" last night he showed that a seemingly harmless bolt can be about as playful as a twin-tornado.

"If you are familiar with lightning, it is not difficult to trace its path," he explained. "It generally leaves its mark wherever it goes."

Our years of experience with artificial lightning, with voltages as high as ten million, have supplied

Envoy of 'Good Will' Named by Atlanta

A "Commissioner of Good Will" was created yesterday by city council as a part of Atlanta's efforts to make Georgia's capital a "convention city."

Faber A. Bollinger, executive vice president of the Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau, was named "Commissioner of Good Will" in a resolution introduced by Alderman Frank H. Reynolds. Bollinger is seeking more conventions for the city and has launched an extensive campaign, Reynolds said.

us with much information useful in our study of natural lightning and how to guard against the damage it is liable to do.

It May Bounce.

Lightning may strike a tree and travel to the ground, he said, adding that if the soil happens to be of gravel or a poor conductor it is just as likely to bounce out and do further destructive work until it finds a ground of less resistance.

Mr. McEachron recounted how a month ago a CCC boy was killed by a "prank" played by a wandering bolt. The lightning reached the ground by way of an apple tree, followed roots 37 feet under the house in which the boy was standing, into the house, jumping from one metal bed to another, and into the body of the boy.

From the boy the bolt went into a radio aerial, a secondary power line and finally out into a telephone circuit.

If you must stand under something during an electrical storm, don't stand under a tree, he warned, for three reasons—side-flashes from the tree, charging of the ground around the base through roots, and actual explosion of the tree.

"The safest place to get in the house would be in the furnace," Mr. McEachron said, "because of the all-steel surrounding."

"When providing grounds for transmission towers, power stations, or lightning rod systems on buildings, grounds are provided by driven rods, buried wires, or pipes, and actual explosion of the tree."

ALLIGATOR AND VETS
FAIL TO SEE IL DUCE

ROME, Oct. 4.—(P)—A baby American alligator and 600 American Legionnaires failed to keep a scheduled rendezvous with Il Duce today because the Italian leader was in the country resting from his strenuous visit to Germany.

The alligator was to be the memento of the visit. Officials of the foreign office received the delegation cordially.

ABDUCTED, ROBBED, GEORGIAN REPORTS

Cartersville Man Tells of Forced Ride and Loss of $250 Roll.

LAFAYETTE, Ga., Oct. 4.—(P)—W. H. Weatherston, 40, of near Cartersville, Ga., reported to Sheriff Creed Shelby late today he had been kidnapped and robbed of $250 by two men who escaped in his automobile after letting him out near Rock Spring, 11 miles north of here.

Sheriff Shelby said Weatherston, who claimed to be a deputy sheriff, told him he had sold some cotton at Cartersville earlier in the day for $250, and was en route to Lincoln to pay some bills, when his automobile stopped from motor trouble.

The sheriff said Weatherston told him the two men approached, forced him inside the car, and drove to the north. After taking the money, Weatherston said, the men let him out near Rock Spring, where he managed to get his pistol. He told the sheriff he fired several shots and the men fled toward Chattanooga in his car.

No trace of the bandits had been found tonight.

Sheriff Shelby said the sheriff at Cartersville had told him Weatherston held a commission as a deputy sheriff.

JURY IS SELECTED IN OIL TRUST SUIT

2 Alternate Jurors Picked for Lengthy Trial.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 4.—(P)—A jury composed mostly of middle aged farmers and small-town businessmen was completed tonight to try 23 oil companies, three trade publications, and 46 individuals on price-fixing conspiracy charges under the Sherman anti-trust act.

Besides 12 "good men and true," Federal Judge Stone directed selection of two alternate jurors as "spares," because of the probable length of the trial—estimated by many to last three or four months.

By direction of the court, the 14 men will be locked up in hotel rooms tonight and will be kept in custody constantly for the duration of the trial. A marshal will censor all mail or newspaper the jurors read.

POSTOFFICE SITES.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 4.—Six cities, ranging in price from $13,000 to $51,000, have been offered as the location for the new $220,000 post office building here. Postmaster J. R. Myers said a postal inspector will visit here soon to inspect the sites that have been offered, and to select the location.
